Hell Week Memories

In my junior year, 1933, I became a Phi Chapter member at the "ripe" old age of 21. Your "Hazing" article! After sixty-four years, I very vividly remember "Hell Week" when I wasn't even "dry behind the ears!" The things the actives dreamed up for us to do almost forced me to "give up the ship." In fact, it made a "rebel" out of me.

If you are interested, I can still recall the ridiculous antics we were subjected to. Consequently, I was not a good congenial member.

My wife and I met in Detroit in 1938, married in 1939 and wound up in California in 1942, now 53 years. What a break!

Sincerely,

E. C. "Sandy" Sanford, Iowa State '33, Pleasant Hill, CA

P.S. Brother Hollis "Pete" Hillstrom, Iowa State '31, Omega '93, was best man at our wedding. Bill Wirth, Iowa State '34, Omega '94, became a member the year I graduated.

Brothers for Life

On a cruise I happened to be seated with a group which included one Joseph A. Bardwil and his charming wife, Valerie. In the course of conversation he mentioned having graduated from the University of Pennsylvania. I replied saying—the only other such grad I knew was my old friend, Lloyd Cochran, Penn '20, Omega '81. Joe answered "wait a minute I know that name. He was a Fraternity brother." You know the rest of the story. Joe proved to be another Alpha Sig—Omicron Chapter. We exchanged the hand clasp!

There, off the coast of Central America, two brother Sigs met and became fast friends in the arms of the "Old Gal." I was thrilled and I feel sure Joe was also. Quite a story, at least I think so.

Fraternally yours, Emmet B. Hayes, Stanford '31, Burlingame, CA

Ed.: Brother Bardwil lives in Cranford, NJ and was initiated at Penn in 1947.

Can Any Alcohol Use Be Responsible?

My primary reason for sending you this letter is the article in the Fall 1994 Tomahawk regarding Alpha Sigma Phi and alcohol abuse. Just so you know where I am coming from let me give you a little of my background. I attended Indiana University from 1968-1972 and was initiated into Gamma Chi in 1969. During that period of time I did some heavy abuse of alcohol which resulted in some near fights, destruction of property, and very likely some lost friendships. To say the least I am not proud of any of this and in fact am ashamed of some of my actions during that time. I only write this to show that I understand what the brothers today are facing in terms of the use and abuse of alcohol. In many ways it is no different now than it was then.

Over the past 12 years I have been working in the alcohol/drug treatment field. I have done everything from being an alcohol/drug counselor to a hospital administrator. I hold certifications as an alcohol/drug counselor both nationally and by the State of Indiana. In terms of the problems caused by abuse of alcohol/drugs I know what I am talking about.

Knowing something about the way alcohol affects a person causes me to doubt if such seminars are effective or even appropriate. As you are probably aware, alcohol affects the brain. In fact if it did not do this, alcohol would not be very popular. Unfortunately, the first area of the brain alcohol affects is the area where our inhibitions, judgement, and reasoning are held. Alcohol progressively impairs these, so to try to educate somebody about maintaining good judgement when the use of the substance impairs judgement from the first drink, causes me great concern. Certainly some people are less sensitive to the effects of alcohol than others and are able to maintain their sense of judgement longer.

My concern is that this type of "training," if you will, may give a false sense of "control." The other concern I have is this training could increase the fratemity's liability instead of decrease it. My reasoning is that if a chapter holds this training and someone from that chapter, after going through the training, injures (or worse) himself or someone else could the chapter be seen as: (1) formally condoning the use of alcohol, (2) implying that anyone who goes through this seminar has been trained to drink responsibly, therefore this person who was injured was not trained adequately by the chapter — would the chapter then be held liable for sponsoring poor training?

It is my opinion that the Fraternity should come out in a statement to all chapters saying that abstinence from alcohol and drugs is a desirable goal. I know that many, if not most, people in the fraternity will not see this as being practical and maybe even be hypocritical, but I think for some brothers this may give them the courage to strive for such a goal and for others it may cause them to stop and think about this as a possibility. And if we truly want to "Better the Man" is this not one way to attempt to achieve this?

Jim Gleason, Indiana '69, Indianapolis, IN Response:

Dear Brother Gleason:

You have a very good point. We have a great opportunity to teach young men about responsibility. My only point about teaching responsible drinking is to teach students to follow the guidelines laid out in our risk management policy which include:

- Serving non-alcoholic beverages
- · Serving unsalted foods at events
- Two sober monitors at every event involving alcohol
- No drinking games

I know we have a very long way to go on this issue but we are making progress, one step at a time.

You may be pleased to know that we have established our first "substance free" chapter in the fraternity at lowa State University. In our reactivation plan, the chapter is set up so that no alcohol nor illegal drugs are allowed on chapter property or in conjunction with any chapter function. This idea seems to be very attractive to many of the top students and leaders which we seek to recruit.

I hope this helps clarify my statement. Thank you very much for your feedback and continued interest in the future of our young brothers.

Fraternally,
Steven V. Zizzo
Executive Vice President

More On Osteoporosis

I enjoyed the recent issue of The Tomahawk. It has prompted me to send an update on my current location and job.

I graduated from the Purdue University School of Pharmacy in 1984. Since then I have obtained a Doctor of Medicine from Indiana University School of Medicine. I then completed a residency in Internal Medicine at the University of Alabama Hospitals in Metabolism at the Mayo Clinic. My area of research was Metabolic Bone Disease, specifically osteoporosis.

I am currently an Endocrinologist with the Springfield Clinic in Springfield, MO and Co-Medical Director of the Osteoporosis Center at St. John's Regional Health Center. I am board certified in Internal Medicine and Endocrinology, Diabetes and Metabolism.

I found your article on Men's Health interesting. My only addition would be that the DEXA (Bone density xray) is only done every 1 to 2 years because changes in bone density can not be detected in shorter time intervals. With my clinical and research interest in osteoporosis, I am glad to see osteoporosis receiving more publicity. Prevention is the best cure for osteoporosis in most cases.

I also have a wonderful two-year-old son named Alexander.

Yours in the Mystic Circle, Gregory A. Ledger, M.D., Purdue University, 1982 Springfield, MO

Gamma Chapter Returns

I wish to thank you for announcing the recolonization of Gamma Chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi at the University of Massachusetts. It was music to my ears. My real hopes are high for the success of this operation.

I was pledged in 1929 and became a member in 1930. It was the Massachusetts Agricultural College then. It proceeded to be Mass. State and then, of course, as the University.

The first girl I pinned became my bride and we are now husband and wife for over 60 years!

I majored in chemistry and was commissioned a 2nd Lt. Cavalry, real horses in 1933 (reserves). Made it permanent in 1941. Served in combat units in WWII and finally retired peacefully in 1968 as Colonel, Ord C. after 35 total years. Right now both of us are in good health.

Thanks! Stan Tyler, Massachusetts '30 (Still an Alpha Sigma Phi) Port Haywood, VA

The Tomahawk would like to apologize for misidentifying the Penn State chapter house in the last issue. The beautiful stone building recently underwent a $250,000 renovation. The Brothers and alumni of Penn State deserve credit for taking such pride in their chapter house.

Leadership

Does Alpha Sigma Phi develop leaders?

hen a young man is initiated into the Brotherhood of Alpha Sigma Phi, he participates in a scared ritual that calls him to be not only a Brother, but a leader. As the glow of the ritual wanes and the bright light of day-to-day chapter life asserts itself, each and every Brother is invited in many ways to lead. From Grand Senior President to chapter secretary to Canine Companions volunteer, Alpha Sigma Phi is full of opportunities.

But what role does Alpha Sigma Phi really play in the development of leaders? Does a man's experience in his fraternity give him the tools and opportunities to enhance his natural leadership skills? Or are certain people simply "born leaders" who will be just as effective with or without benefit of a fraternity bond?

Each semester, we ask hundreds of young men to believe that this Fraternity will aid them in their current and future success. We ask them to become our Brothers and we promise in return that Alpha Sigma Phi does indeed, "Better the Man."

Before we look at what the Fraternity is actually doing to fulfill this promise, let's discover what leadership means to us.

Leonard Hultquist has done quite a bit of thinking on the concept of leadership. In a speech he gave to undergraduates, Brother Hultquist explains the ingredients of leadership:

"Have a vision for yourself. A leader finds the strength to go forward in the face of setbacks and even failures. If you know where you're going and why, you'll get there. Also, have a zest for life. The leader loves what he does and loves doing it. Third, energy. If a leader is to be effective, the purposeful action that he radiates will inspire the followers around him by example to efforts they never had imagined themselves capable of," explains Hultquist.

He adds: "A leader must have integrity. The key element here is self-knowledge. Get to truly know yourself -- strengths and weaknesses -- and then focus on what you want to do and why you want to do it. Integrity generates trust from others, without which a leader cannot function."

"A leader must have integrity. The key element here is self-knowledge. ...Integrity generates trust from others, without which a leader cannot function."

-Leonard Hultquist

Congressman Frank Wolf is considered a leader by virtue of his position in the U.S. House of Representatives. But it was not the desire to lead, so much as the dream of being a Congressman — a dream he held onto since third grade — that pushed him on through two losing bids. It was also a deep desire to help others, and the belief that a political leadership role was a vehicle for service to others that inspired Wolf to run for office.

"Leadership means being willing to take on tough issues and helping other people," said Wolf. "To me it's all about compassion for people and passion for ideas."

When you begin with a passion for ideas, the people around you who support and believe in your ideas can be your greatest supporters in the climb up the leadership ladder. Such was the case with Horace Kornegay, Wake Forest '42 who has spent much of his public life in ell-known leaders among us include Lawrence S. Eagleburger, Wisconsin '51, The Honorable John Kasich, Ohio State '73, The Honorable Frank Wolf, Penn State '60, C. Everett Koop, Dartmouth '34, Warren Buffet, Penn '48, Horace Kornegay, Wake Forest '42, and Leonard Hultquist, Alabama '60.

Former U.S. Secretary of State, Lawrence S. Eagleburger, is now a Senior Foreign Policy Advisor at the law firm of Baker, Donelson, Bearman and Caldwell, and sits on the boards of Dresser Industries, Phillips Petroleum Company, Universal Leaf Tobacco, and Stimsonite Corporation. He's even an honorary knight, having been so honored by Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II.

1978 when he won an Ohio state senate seat, ousting the Democratic incumbent.

U.S. Representative Frank Wolf (R-Va.) lost his bids for Congress in 1976 and in 1978, finally winning in 1980. He plans to run for re-election in 1996. His current political seat is his only leadership role ever, said Wolf from his office in Washington.

The second-richest man in America is an Alpha Sig. Warren Buffett is certainly a leader in terms of material success, and is considered one of the brightest investing minds around. There are even books about him — the most recent is The Warren Buffett Way, that purports to reveal the secrets of Buffett's investing success.

Horace Kornegay, Wake Forest '42

leadership positions. And his core group of supporters were his Fraternity Brothers.

Kornegay was president of his Alpha Sigma Phi chapter at Wake Forest in 1946, and then moved on to Student Body president — with his Brothers his most active campaigners. He continued up the ladder into elected positions as North Carolina state prosecutor and District Attorney, then to being elected four times to the United States Congress in 1961-69, embracing the call to lead that began with Alpha Sigma Phi.

For Kornegay, leadership meant the willingness to work at something until it succeeded. He had a deep abiding interest in the success of his fraternity, just as later he worked for the success of his North Carolina Congressional district, and his country.

"To me, a leader needs to set goals, be willing to work at it, including performing the small tasks, understanding the large rewards will come in time. One way Alpha Sigma Phi helps is to give young men the opportunity to get used to leadership positions. When you become accustomed to leading and making decisions, then positions of leadership will come your way naturally," said Kornegay.

John Kauffman, Purdue '43, our newest

Alpha Sigma Phi Educational Foundation trustee, succinctly explains the important role of leader as organizer and motivator: "Leadership means the ability to have visions and have them implemented by other people — it's the ability to work within an organization to accomplish your objectives without ruling with an iron hand. Leadership does not mean telling people what do, it means communicating clearly and then letting them get out there and do it," said Kauffman.

How did Kauffman's experience in Alpha Sigma Phi experience play a part in his ultimately becoming the Chairman, President and CEO of Pennsylvania Power and Light, a position from which he is now retired?

"Being in the fraternity helped me to learn to work effectively in a group that had common objectives," he said. "I went to college when I was sixteen and then went to war. I learned many leadership skills in the war, and was able to put them into practice when I returned to college and Alpha Sigma Phi."

Leadership Programs Offered by Alpha Sigma Phi

Alpha Sigma Phi is approaching leadership development with this philosophy, articulated by Steve Zizzo, executive vice-president of Alpha Sigma Phi: "We are focusing on specific officers in the chapter through the Academy of Leadership held in January. In these sessions, undergraduates learn about integrity, motivating others, developing relationships and establishing stretch goals. These are the fundamentals that young people must learn in the leadership development process."

Zizzo's personal definition of leadership is simple. He says leadership means, "The development of a vision and a direction so that others will rally around your focus and be enthused to support it."

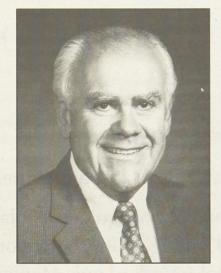

The Fraternity offers undergraduates two primary programs to help young men develop leadership skills:

Academy of Leadership. Alpha Sigma Phi is committed to supporting the undergraduate leaders of every chapter. The Academy of Leadership allows newly-elected chapter and colony officers to develop a deeper awareness of themselves and their actions. They are given the opportunity to outline a vision for their goals and an action plan. This greater awareness leads to extraordinary results. The cost of this program is $46,000 annually.

The Ralph F. Burns New Members Program. This leadership program was developed by the Grand Council's Future of Chapter Services Task Force and is an extremely innovative program that focuses attention of a national conference on our new members and recent initiates. This program will allow new members to experience a national program just for them. The Fraternity estimates the annual cost for this leader-building program will be $150,000 per year. Funding this initiative is one of the major goals of the Sesquicentennial Capital Campaign.

Other programs to be put in place by the campaign include:

The Chapter Advisory Team Training Program -This program will provide chapter advisors with the advising and coaching skills required to better consult with undergraduate officers.

John Kauffman, Purdue '43

"Leadership does not mean telling people what to do, it means communicating clearly and then letting them get out there and do it."

-John Kauffman

Advanced Leadership Training Scholarships -These grants will allow undergraduate leaders to attend outstanding programs outside the Fraternity.

The programs available to chapter leaders are hailed as useful in strengthening the bonds of brotherhood, and focusing leadership skills, but it is the day-to-day running of a chapter and chapter house that gives these young men the foundation of authority-role experience.

"It's easy to see how chapter presidents and officers go on into leadership positions after college when you think of it this way," began Nathan Hood, Illinois, '92, former president of his chapter, as well as president of IFC at his school, "As president, I was CEO of a corporation with 80 employee-shareholders (active members), a multi-million dollar facility (chapter house) and a budget of more than a quarter of a million dollars. There's a lot of money running through this 'corporation', and I had to manage it.

Jon Heyboer is president of the Alpha Sigma Phi colony at Grand Valley State University. "Alpha Sigma Phi has enhanced my existing leadership skills and allowed me to address a larger group. It's given me the opportunity to communicate my thoughts, solve problems, and meet challenges in whatever area they may be," said Jon, quick to add that his Brothers (including his own twin brother, Josh, historian of the colony) have contributed as much to the development of the colony as he has.

Pressed, he acquiesces to speak about himself. "I've gained an enormous amount of skill at Alpha Sigma Phi. I've held presidencies in other Student Life organizations, and none compared to the leadership skills I've gained and used in Alpha Sigma Phi. In fraternities, there's a lot of problem solving — it's an evolving process, whereas Student Life is pretty structured and straightforward. The fraternity experience is more beneficial to me. And be aware that this is coming from someone who swore he'd never go Greek. But when I heard Alpha Sigma Phi's message, it appealed to me," concluded Jon.

So it seems, participation in Alpha Sigma Phi, especially in leadership roles does indeed "better the man", and it betters the leader in that man. Time and time again, we've heard Brothers — from 17-year old colony members to 80-year old alumni — say that one of the best things about Alpha Sigma Phi is that it is a family and a home. They say their Brothers and the national Fraternity support them and encourage them and show them their own strong points. With such a dedicated family giving young men so many reasons to believe in themselves, it's not surprising so many of us are Leaders. $\Delta\Sigma\Phi$

A Celebration of 150 Years of Brotherhood

SESQUICENTENNIAI CELEBRATION 1845 • YALE • 1995

One hundred fifty years.

More than 50,000 men.

And friendships that last a lifetime.

Alpha Sigma Phi's Sesquicentennial Celebration Year was highlighted in August in Charleston, S.C., hometown of our principal founder Louis Manigault.

Brothers board the tour bus en route to one of the many events during the five day celebration.

ore than 200 undergraduate and alumni brothers, and their families, gathered at Charleston's historic Mills House Hotel for an unsurpassed celebration of brotherhood.

And as a special highlight, some 40 descendants of Louis Manigault were in attendance during the five-day event.

"We're particularly pleased that so many members of Louis Manigault's family joined our celebration," said Grand Senior President Stan Thurston, Iowa

State '66. "Their presence helped move Manigault from the history pages and lore of Alpha Sigma Phi and made him more real to us in ways previously only imagined."

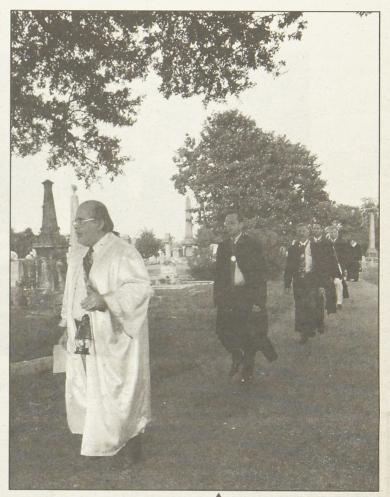

The Celebration combined alumni activities with the special undergraduate training and group events that hallmark every Leadership Conference.

"I can't tell you how much I've gotten from these national meetings," said undergraduate Brother Chris Blanco, Miami '93. "At the Academy of Leadership in January, and now in Charleston, I see how far-reaching Alpha Sigma Phi really is. It's also hard knowing that my next national meeting will be as an alumnus, but by being with the alumni here, I can see even more why it's important for alumni to be active in the Fraternity."

But this special commemoration wasn't all meetings.

A number of activities brought opportunities for old acquaintances to be renewed and new friendships formed.

Conferees were treated to a dinner cruise and tour of Charleston Harbor; private tours of the Joseph Manigault House — Grand Marshal Robert G. Cabello, Eastern Michigan '70, leads the Black Lantern Processional to the tomb of Louis Manigault in Magnolia Cemetery.

the home built by Louis Manigault's uncle which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and features a portrait of Louis' family in Paris when he was a toddler; and a Low Country Barbecue held on the grounds of Boone Hall Plantation.

Director of Alumni Services, Scott Grissom, Oklahoma '78, designed a display of items from Fraternity archives, including many items rarely seen outside Fraternity Headquarters. At the centerpiece of the display was Louis Manigault's original membership badge. Even though the display was promoted only to conference attendees, members of the Charleston Historic Society viewed the archives and commended it as one of the top displays they had witnessed.

But the two highlights of the Celebration were dedication of a marker at Magnolia Cemetery, the burial site of Louis Manigault, recognizing him as the principal founder of Alpha Sigma Phi, and the Awards Banquet, during which some 40 Manigault descendants were guests. The Rev. Emmet Gribbins accepted the grave marker on behalf of the family and the Rev. Lindell Linton Sawyers, editor of Louis Manigault: Gentleman From South Carolina, was keynote speaker at the Awards Banquet. ΑΣΦ

Explore the life and times of Alpha Sigma Phi's principal founder, Louis Manigault. From his birth into one of Colonial America's most prominent families, to the tragedy of the Civil War, to the hardships in the late 19th century Charleston, Louis Manigault: Gentleman From South Carolina gives a look into history unprecedented in the fraternity world.

Publishing the book is a gift of the Manigault Family to Alpha Sigma Phi and was made possible by the generous contribution of Leonard Hultquist II, Alabama '60. All proceeds go to underwriting Alpha Sigma Phi's Sesquicentennial Celebration.

A Look Back from the Archives of The To Discovering the truth about the American scene always has been an elusive task at best. But today, with our vast communications networks, our vast computerized information sources, we suddenly have so much information . . . so many truths . . . that instead of great clarity, the truth has become blurred in a dizzy array of constantly changing facts. It is this information explosion which bounces back and forth inside our brains, which tends to shake our faith in the stability of our society . . . which gives us the feeling of leaning against the door of death, when instead we should be throwing open the door on the sunlight of a bright new decade of unimaginable progress.

The mass communications media has involved us personally and emotionally in events distant and remote from the very happenings around us. The story on the television set is closer to a person than the man he sat next to on his morning bus ride to work. The things a world away are personal. The things around us have become impersonal.

MATERIALS: Twelve Alpha Sigs, one professor, one fraternity house, the resources of a college community, and a certain amount of guts and gall. Procedure: organize and accredit into weekly meetings. Results: Sociology 491

Thus was the lota chapter, Cornell University, experimental course born. Gaining impetus from Cornell's rebirth of student participation in the spring of 1969, house members organized an won faculty support for a seminar course entitled "The Year 2000: Where We'll Be."

Conceptionally revolutionary in several ways, Sociology 491 marked the first time a fraternity at Cornell became a recognized academic environment; it was also the first course whose members were selected all from the same house.

Each element of the course was chosen to make strong whole. The S-U graded two-credit project organized itself around topics ranging from nutrition to race relations to technological control.

And what did it all come to? It obviously established much more than just a fraternity can be academically relevant to the modern college community.

Where We'll Be In 2000 Thomas L. Davidson, Cornell '67

Alpha Sigma Phi, along with all other college fraternities in the country, has struggled during the past two years. Out of the 28 chapters that were open just prior to the war, only four are now active in the full sense of the word, with three others initiating members during this period. The usual revenues which kept the national organization going, initiation fees and active chapter dues, are no longer coming in. It is the splendid spirit of the alumni of the fraternity in their financial support which is underwriting our survival until such time as the individual chapters can function in any manner approaching normal.

The fraternity has its place in the democratic life that must be part of the America we love. It teaches men to live together sharing the normal give and take of community experience with mutual understanding and in good will toward one another. In a small way it comes to exemplify the universal brotherhood of all men upon which the peace and security of the world depends.

In our fraternity we learn the exercise of freedom, learn to know what freedom is, come to understand that freedom is not license or privilege but that it is a sharing of one's rights with the rights of others. A fraternity that teaches these things to its members has a place and an assured growth in the century that is now beginning in Alpha Sigma Phi.

Annual Report of Council

A frate mity is not a house or a lodge but rather an experience, a growth, a traveling with friends who soon become brothers upon whom one can with confidence rely, something precious and worth while, something to be shared with others, something to be preserved for those who will come after us.

I give you, my fraternity, Alpha Sigma Phi.

Wilbur H. Cramblet, Yale '12 Grand Senior President

In the Banta Exchange for September, Brother Musgrave has given some of his observations and opinions gained in his twelve years' experience as an officer in Alpha Sigma Phi. He neither emphasizes our strength nor covers up our weakness, but gives the situation with the same frankness that a trained investigator might if called upon to do so.

Brother Musgrave says that snobbery has been abolished and since no freak chapters exist, a brother need never feel unwelcome in any chapter of the fraternity. Perhaps this is a minor point, but it seems to me to be very important.

Individuals look out for their own. In general, people are considerate of those they know and like, polite to those they do not know and insulting to those they know and do not like. Monkeys and men have these traits in common. The first two are commendable in both monkey and man - the latter is amusing in a monkey and childish in a man. The more a man makes a monkey of himself in this trait, the more amusing he is.

There is still another class of people, those we do not know and are not anxious to know, our inferiors, with neither brains nor social advantages, in other words the bore. We may be much like this class ourselves, but that only makes it more amusing. These social obligations whom we feel we should tolerate but can't, and we haven't time, and anyway there is nothing to gain by it. Such a nuisance, you know.

The monkey's behavior to this class is called snobbery, and the gentleman's conduct is known as courtesy. Real courtesy, I mean, not faked politeness. Someone has said that it's like an air cushion, not much in it but it eases the jolts wonderfully. It is up to all to choose in which classification he belongs.

Is it not a great thing that we have no snobbery in Alpha Sigma Phi? We know which end of the parade we are in. How we have climbed Darwin's ladder!

Alpha Sigma Phi Uniform Throughout The Country Ross A. Lasley, Yale '19

The last caricature is one intended for the "ALPHA SIGMA PHI SOCIETY," a Society by far the most influential and talented in our College. Indeed, it is the parent Society of the College; and numbers among the most illustrious of its chapters, the "Skull and Bone" and the "Phi Beta Kappa." And, speaking of the "Skull and Bone," we would say for the benefit especially of those young gentlemen "lately torn from weeping mothers, &c.," that the last Yale Banner was not issued under the auspices of that Society, "assisted by a few members of the Freshman Class."

Despite the calumny and sharp-toothed envy, which the baffled ambition of certain autocrats periodically belches forth, the Society of the ALPHA SIGMA PHI, with all its chapters, including the "Skull and Bone," &c. &c. will go on waxing brighter and brighter unto the perfect day! $Diu\ floreat$! $A\Sigma\Phi$

Chapter Reports

University of Findlay, Gamma Pi

The most noteworthy thing that happened during the year was the honor of being awarded the Outstanding Academic Achievement Award for the second straight year. This award is given to the fraternity with the highest GPA on campus. We hope that with our promotion of scholarship during pledging, and our dedication to academic excellence. we will maintain this status and hope to build upon it. We intend to maintain the highest GPA among all organizations on campus.

Our chapter has been very busy this past year with the acquisition of our new house. Along with various painting touchups, landscaping and hanging the letters on the house, we have undergone some major projects on the house. We had a cement pad poured, and put up a basketball hoop with our letters painted on the court. We also painted our basement walls gray and the floor red, and laid carpet throughout much of the house. Along with work put toward the house, the brotherhood held a car wash with the monies going toward our budget. Although throughout much of the year, money was very tight due to unpaid dues, through perseverance and pressure by the entire chapter, debts owed to the chapter have almost been completely paid. This year has also proved extremely successful for us socially. Our chapter held mixers throughout the year with the sororities on campus, and our Super Bowl party was attended by all the sororities. We hope to continue this success and make next year another great year for Gamma Pi.

Over the summer we plan to improve our pledging program. We've taken steps toward this by having each brother write new ideas and past experiences they feel will improve the program. This will be reviewed over the summer by the pledge educator so a more structured program can be developed. We have also planned for approximately seven (two new) members to make the trip to the National Leadership Conference to improve leadership development and hopefully gain new ideas for the years to come. We hope this summer will be extremely productive and will provide for a good upcoming school year for Gamma Pi.

University of Illinois, Eta Chapter,

Over the past year, Eta Chapter has grown by more than 10 members. We were given exemplary awards in several categories by a Peer Assessment Committee: first, second, third and fifth places in scholarship. We also won the fraternity division of Greek Week, receiving first place due to our house participation and performance in the Olympics during the week. Eta Chapter will also be making a new addition to our house to accommodate 55 brothers living in the house next year.

Marshall University, Beta Delta

The most noteworthy thing that happened during the year was the memorable Black & White dance. Events that stand out are the annual awards that were given out and Mike Hanlon's marriage proposal to his girlfriend, Sharon Douglas. The award winners were Skip Nitardy, Brother of the Year and Highest GPA; Jason Jordan, Most Athletic Active: Travis Moore.

Cardinal & Stone Award: Eric Allman, Cardinal & Stone Award; Russ Hoffman, Most Active; Matt Hill, Most Improved GPA; and Ron Shoop, Most Athletic Pledge and Model Pledge. However, the event of the evening was when Mike Hanlon, Rush Chairman, got down on one knee and proposed to his girlfriend; after she answered the all important question, . "YES!" brothers formed a circle around the couple to sing The Sweetheart Song! The couple then danced to their song, I Cross My Heart, by the country artist, George Strait.

Here's a summary of what our chapter did during

On January 29, 13 men pledged the seven points of Alpha Sigma Phi. These men have been called the best pledge class in recent years because of their participation and leadership skills. Matt Mooney, HSP, held a brotherhood retreat to talk about new ideas and approaches the chapter can positively benefit from. There were 25 actives, five pledges and one alumnus that discussed how to improve grades and reinforce pride in Beta Delta. Travis Moore, Service Chairman, filled the year with many service projects, such as, Adopt-A-Highway, Christian Community Cupboard, Campus Blood Drives, Habitat for Humanity, Boys Club, etc. Danny Lewis, Pledge Educator, organized the first ever Big Brother Appreciation Week. Events included watching the Marshall-East Tennessee basketball game, movie night, T-shirt night, and cooking dinner for their big brothers.

In the annual "Greek Sing," four brothers (Matt Heck, Matt Turley, Travis Samson and Chris Nourse) performed The Sweetheart Song, On Bended Knee and You Lost Your Loving Feeling to take second place in the event. On April 23, Beta Delta held elections and installments of new officers, they are, Skip Nitardy, HSP; Matt Mooney, HJP; Travis Moore, HE; Russ Hoffman, HR; Chris Layne, HCS; Rick Bledsoe, HS; Anthony Carpenter, HA; Brian Null, HM; Mike Nitardy, HP; Charlie Fulton, HC; Al Siebal, PMAL; Rob Salvino, PMAL; Chris McKeand, IFC; and Lee Harper, Rush Chairman.

Beta Delta's goals for the 1995-96 year are to increase membership, increase participation, perpetuate/maintain brotherhood, create leadership in younger members, increase the number of members at meetings, create a better relationship with alumni, make sure all committees have meetings, increase GPA, increase participation in intramurals, have regular service projects/fundraisers, and collect all accounts receivable.

Missouri Valley College, Alpha Omicron

We, the men of Alpha Omicron, have been enjoying a successful new year. This is a big relief because in the past few years things started going in the wrong direction. That was something that greatly disturbed our alumni. When they heard of the trouble that we were having, they came together to help us save our chapter. Saving Alpha Omicron was no easy task. If any chapter can say that they were as close as they could get without losing their charter, it would be us. We were in trouble with our college and our community. This was something that our dedicated alumni were determined to stop. The first thing they did was to get the Articles of Incorporation reinstated so that our once inactive Alumni Corporation could get back into business. As soon as they received the go ahead from the state of Missouri, everything else was history. With their help, our house was reorganized, and our goals were made clear. Our alumni were there every step of the way to answer our questions. If they did not have the answer, they would confer with Fraternity Headquarters to find it. We would like to extend our deepest thanks to our alumni and Headquarters, because without them, our chapter would now be on the inactive list.

At the Greek Games Canoe Race, U.N.C.C.

Michael Curtis and Robert Burke finished first.

Since that time, Alpha Omicron has been doing quite well. We had a large fall pledge class that helped us reach some of our goals. Those pledges are now active members, and they are stepping in to help us reach our long-term goals.

Our chapter has been getting involved in more community service this year. This is something that has turned many heads. The administration of Missouri Valley College seems to like what they see. It is our intention that they continue to see great things from our chapter. The community service projects that we have been involved in to date range from raking leaves for the Saline County Social Services, to hanging ribbons and donating money to our local Red Ribbon Committee. The Red Ribbon Committee is one that helps discourage people from using drugs. Our latest project was to help the Marshall (MO) Chamber of Commerce with their annual tele-auction. The auction raised funds for the community and scholarships that are to be given away to first-time area students. We had a great time doing the work, and we are finding out that helping our community can be a rewarding experience. If any chapter is currently idle in the area of community service, take it from us, it is well worth the time and effort that is involved. Odds are that the men of your chapter will have a great time getting the job done.

We are hoping our new success will not level off. Success is a great thing, and we have every intention of keeping things going in the right direction.

University of North Carolina-Charlotte, Delta Zeta

Our chapter had a very eventful year and there were many things that could be deemed the most noteworthy, such as:

- For the first time in five years, while working our huge fundraiser of the year, we placed third in Greek Week. Individual awards include: First Place-Canoe Race; Greek Man of the Year (Arash Nasseri); and Delta Zeta Sorority's Spirit Award.
- Newly-formed Alumni Corporation.
- Newly-formed Brotherhood Enrichment Committee
- Acquired the services of Rudolph M. Lee, Wake Forest '74, Attorney at Law, co-advisor.
- · Beautifully catered Eighth Annual Pig Pickin'.
- Raised chapter GPA from 2.1 to 2.43.
- · Acquired two temporary central locations
- 100% more active on campus.
- Acquired Dr. Nicholas Coste as Faculty Advisor and Brother.
- Individual Awards: Dr. Nicholas Coste, Part-time Teacher of the Year Award 1994-95; Mark Harris-Diamond Honor Award; Robert Burke-Order of Omega Honor Society; John Snelsire-Delta Beta Xi Award; Dave Hack-IFC Vice President of Rush; Arash Nasseri-National Deans List 1995, Ordel of Omega 1995; Diamond Honor Award 1994-95, Greek Man of the Year 1994-95, HSP 1995; Dave Zak-Brother of the Year 1994.
- Continue revising our constitution. Complete our May fundraiser at Speedway. Help with freshmen move in. Attend student orientation.
- Prepare for an excellent Fall Rush. Spend as little money as possible.
- Continue toward attaining a new house.
- · Plan for Ninth Annual Alumni Pig Pickin'.

Franklin & Marshall College, Alpha Tau II

We were given a certificate of appreciation for our continued involvement with the PHI Corporation for outstanding voluntary service in the community. We also came in first place in the Greek Olympics over our Spring Arts Weekend. The money raised was given to Mom's House, a local charity in Lancaster.

Over Spring Arts Weekend, we formed our alumni council which will start operating formally in the fall. Those members on the alumni council are President, Ben Hooper; Vice-President, Eric Askew; Treasurer, Ross Delevich; Secretary, Christopher Barauchuas; Social, Jamie McCleary; and Chapter Advisor, Ed Plakans. Ben Hooper, Jamie McCleary and Ross Delevich will be initiated into Alpha Sigma Phi this summer.

Rutgers University, Beta Theta

The most noteworthy thing that happened during the year was that our TV room was redone by brothers during winter break. The alumni paid for it and the work was done by the undergrads. New furniture was donated by Mike Hoverman, HJP, and Tom Grimaldi, HR.

During the past year our chapter had our annual fund raiser for Canine Companions for Independence raising over $500; "Mystic Madness 2" kicked off the Spring Festival here at Rutgers with a Greek Social as well as two back to back parties; six new men were initiated into Alpha Sigma Phi; we had a successful Homecoming and Founders' Day with many alumni returning to the chapter house; and many of our brothers purchased special "Old Gal" hats in honor of the Sesquicentennial.

We plan on redoing our basement and are looking forward to the fall pledge class of at least ten new men. We are also looking forward to the Sesquicentennial Celebration in Charleston and hope to see many Rutgers Sigs in attendance. We also wish to obtain a #1 rating from the Rutgers Fraternity Council.

Some of our Alpha Tau II Brothers traveled to

University of Washington, Mu

Mu Chapter held a "Back to the Brotherhood" retreat. At the retreat we spent much needed time discussing every aspect of the Fraternity. The retreat allowed everyone to express their own opinions in the hopes that we can change areas that are in trouble.

Much was accomplished over the weekend, held April 7-9, and the brotherhood is very pleased with what we accomplished and our new dedication back to the brotherhood.

Presbyterian College, Alpha Psi

An Open Letter to our Alumni:

I am writing you in order to keep you informed as to the comings and goings of this chapter. I hope this letter will suffice.

First, I would like to inform you of our 12 new brothers. They are: Brandon Atkins, Eric Banks, Jay Cummings, Berkeley King, Michael Lucas, Blake Melancon, Erick Parson, Eric Sribnick, Vick Vickery, Chalie Watts, George Wham and Brent Wiggers. Our chapter now stands at 26 brothers. Congratulations for a wonderful semester!

The chapter lost three brothers to the ranks of alumni. Matt Brown, Michael Crawford and Michael Weaver graduated and are pursuing careers of their own. In taking brotherhood to new limits, Mike Weaver began working for our national headquarters as a chapter leadership consultant in June. New officers have been elected and installed in their offices.

Plans are in the works for a Founders' Day Sesquicentennial Celebration December 2 for all area alumni. To be held at the Clinton (SC) National Guard Armory, the reception begins at 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7:30 p.m. There will be dancing and a jazz band. For more information, contact Michael Christensen or Jason Lee at the Chapter. Our telephone number is 803-833-8671. Let's get together to celebrate our fraternity's big birthday!

We are always eager to hear from our alumni! In Alpha, Sigma and Phi,

Michael Christensen, HSP Presbyterian College Box 495 Clinton, SC 29325

Ohio Wesleyan University, Epsilon

Greetings from the Epsilon Chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi. With each passing year since our rechartering, Epsilon Chapter becomes more involved within the fraternity as well as with our neighboring community. We have made strides to instill the old traditions of past Epsilon brotherhood as well as to create an enthusiasm for the present and future of the Epsilon Chapter. We also continue toward our goal of university and Interfraternity Council acceptance and hope that our present and past actions along with positive communication will guide us in this direction.

Epsilon Chapter has expressed its willingness to be an active part of the community through its service commitment. The chapter has continued successful involvement with Canine Companions for Independence and looks forward to future involvement with this worthy cause. Other activities include Adopt-a-Highway and volunteer work with the Delaware Red Cross and their blood drives. With continued involvement the chapter hopes to strengthen its ties to the community of Delaware.

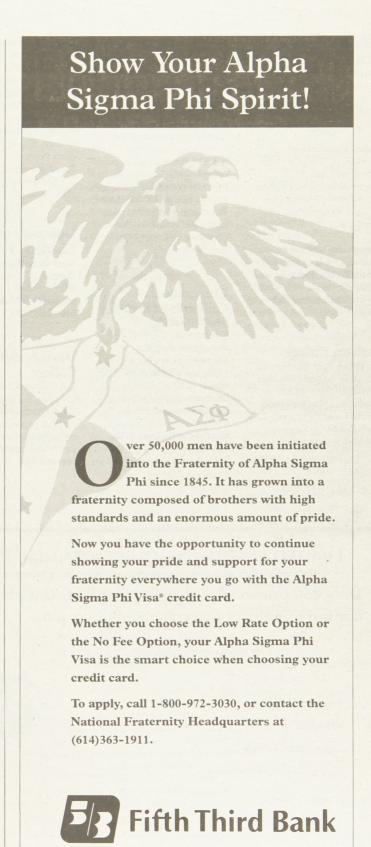

The brothers have also been a part of several social events. The beginning of the year brought about the second annual "Phat Back-to-School Jam" which involved not only the brothers but numerous other Ohio Wesleyan students as well. This was followed later in the fall by a team-building camp which consisted of a ropes course, wall climbing, and other outdoor activities. This event took place over two weekends and provided the opportunity for over twenty freshmen and Epsilon brothers to become better acquainted. Also, brotherhood events continued throughout the year with another dance, basketball games, Thursday night football, and several intramural events. The final major event took place in April in which a wonderful Spring formal was held, culminating an exciting and active year of events for Epsilon Chapter.

Epsilon has moved into its new house, which is located at 73 Park Avenue, directly behind the Beeghly Library. Both undergraduates and alumni have worked diligently to make it a home that all our brothers can be proud of. This home was made possible solely through the generosity of our alumni and we cannot thank them enough! The brothers of Epsilon Chapter hope every brother will visit our new home that we are so proud of, especially during this year's Fallfest in October.

On Saturday, October 28, starting around 11:00 a.m., we will all be gathering at the chapter house for a family style picnic/cookout. Those wishing to attend the football game can do so, and others are welcome to remain at the chapter house. Later that same evening we are planning a dinner at a local restaurant, followed by the traditional Black Lantern Processional, and finally back to the house for anyone who would like to continue visiting with the brothers and their guests. For more information contact Rick Martin at 614/368-2394.

Epsilon Chapter hopes to build on the successes of the past. Numerous events are planned for the coming year to ensure a strong rush program and to strengthen the brotherhood of Epsilon Chapter. The members of the Mystic Circle have and will continue to be a significant part of the Ohio Wesleyan campus community.

GAMMA PSI GOLF TOURNAMENT

The Gamma Psi Alumni council had their annual Golf Outing this year on Sunday June 25, 1995, at the Union Lake Golf Course in Commerce Two Michigan. For 20 years, the Gamma Psi Alumni Council has held this event which is always played on the first Sunday after Father's Day.

This year there were 38 players - mostly Alpha Sigs from Wayne State, Lehigh, Sacramento State, Bethany, Central Michigan, and Lawrence Tech.

The weather threatened throughout the day but was held in check. The team of John Gallagher, Mario Agosta, Dan Glazier, and David Reppenhagen, blazed the way with an outstanding first place finish of 9-under. Mario had the longest drive on hole 17 and David Reppenhagen was closest to the pin on hole 7.

Another Wayne State/Lehigh/Sacramento State hybrid team, comprised of Phil Gannon, Don Allen, Ralph Gallup, and George Grossman, came in second. Don Allen told Bob Look that he hadn't golfed with fellow Wayne Stater, Phil Gannon, in forty years.

Third place saw an exciting two-way tie. The team of Paul Fitzpatrick, Ron Lernowich, and guests found themselves in a dead heat with fellow Lawrence Tech alums Gary Mallia, Steve Borlace, Darrin Raley, and guest.

Congratulations to Alumni Council Vice President Bob Vieracker for organizing this year's outing. We invite all Alpha Sigs to attend our next outing in 1996 - again to be held on the first Sunday after Father's Day. If you have any questions you may call Bob Look, President of the Gamma Psi Alumni Council, at (517)788-8963 or Bob Vieracker at (810) 684-2405. See you next year at the 21st annual Gamma Psi Alumni Council "Hacker/Slasher" Golf Outing!

In Memoriam

I'm sending a donation in memory of Brother Robert Browning, Missouri Valley '51, Omega '94. Brother Browning was also an Eagle Scout and great help to me as a brother in the Scouting Fraternity of Alpha Phi Omega (1949-51). The notice in Omega Chapter in The Tomahawk is the only way I keep in touch. Please keep up the good work! I am retired with heart disability and not active anymore. Even so, I want to keep in touch and so do others!

Earl Shaw, Missouri Valley '51, Omaha, NE

In Memoriam-R. Gwin Follis

I am saddened to report that R. Gwin Follis, California '19, has passed away.

Several months ago, I was asked by Chevron to assist Mr. Follis in a deposition. This deposition was conducted in his home due to his poor health, and I was surprised and pleased to see his Alpha Sigma Phi membership card on his mantle. While it was an unexpected meeting between fraternity brothers, I was nonetheless honored to make his acquaintance.

Very truly yours, Paul F. McQuade, Bethany '76 Partner, Environment Health & Safety Group Washington, D.C. Office

R. Gwin Follis, California '19 Distinguished Merit Award Recipient, 1956 and former chairman of Standard Oil.

Gwin Follis was a dear friend over the years as I was close to his family and was often entertained at his house in San Francisco. Although he graduated from Princeton he spent several prior years at U. C. in Berkeley and was pledged and initiated in Alpha Sigma Phi while there.

He was our speaker for the banquet at our National Convention in Carmel at which I presided as Grand President in the late 50's. Ralph Burns and I visited Gwin at his Standard Oil office in San Francisco prior to the convention and there arranged for him to speak.

To my knowledge he was one of our most distinguished members.

Gateway to the Future Alpha Sigma Phi's 1996 Convention Slated for St. Louis

Help give a great start to the next 150 years of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Make plans now to attend Alpha Sigma Phi's National Leadership Conference and Convention, August 15 to 18, 1996 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in St. Louis, Missouri.

Conference Co-chairmen Mark Still,
Washington '75, and Andrew Barrett, Illinois Tech '89, promise to make the event one of the most exciting ever. With its central location, St. Louis is an ideal setting for the Convention, and is a perfect area for extending your stay for a family vacation.

Watch for special mailings and information in The Tomahawk for details. But make your plans now!
