GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF LOYOLA

HISTORY:

Loyola University was founded as Saint Ignatius College in the Fall of 1869 by the Jesuit Fathers of the Society of Jesus. (Other Jesuit institutions in this country include Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., Boston College, Fordham University in New York City, John Carroll University in Cleveland, and Marquette University in Milwaukee, among many others.) Classes were started at the present Lake Shore Campus (6525 North Sheridan Road) in 1911. In 1922 the departments of Saint Ignatius College and Loyola University were merged into the present College of Arts and Sciences. A school of theology was opened as another branch of the University in 1934 at West Baden, Indiana, for the education of Jesuit scholars. In the Fall of 1946, classes were opened in a sky-scraper donated by Frank J. Lewis (known today as Lewis Towers.) The building is located at 810 North Michigan Avenue. In April of 1964, the West Baden site was North Aurora, Illinois, and renamed the Bellarmine school of Theology.

The Lake Shore Campus is today the main College of Arts and Sciences and of the school of Nursing. Business is taught at Lewis Towers, along with the necessary Arts courses, and these three schools make up the undergraduate student body of Loyola.

Five years ago, classes at Lake Shore were conducted in two aged brick buildings, Dumbach and Cudahy halls which comprised the University in 1911. To these two has been added a modern, ten-story science building called Damen Hall, in which virtually all courses except Theology and Philosophy are now taught. The University is at present more than doubling the capacity of the Cudahy Memorial Library, and is building a seventeen story men's dormitory. The present men's dorm, Champion Hall, houses 360 students. It will be converted into a women's dorm when the new building is completed. Other dormitory space is at present restricted to several converted and leased apartment buildings. The remainder of the Lake Shore plant includes Madonna della Strada Chapel, the Jesuit Faculty Home and Administration building, the Gymnasium, and the Campus Center.

Fraternities found their way onto the campuses of Loyola University in 1920. At this time Loyola was a small university and few national fraternities were interested in colonizing there. The fraternities founded on campus at that time were all locals. Most of them had their origin in groups of friends from the same high school who solidified their friendships into brotherhoods upon entering Loyola or from groups of men that founded groups for a common cause.

The first fraternity was Phi Mu Chi which later split, forming Pi Alpha Lamda. Phi Mu Chi later went national with Sigma Pi Fraternity. Pi Alpha Lamda went on to become the best and largest fraternity of the '50's. They were solely responsible for the building of Loyola's chapel.

The Tau Kappa Epsilon Chapter was formed from the University Club in 1955.

Delta Sigma Phi was founded at the Lake Shore Campus in 1958.

Alpha Delta Gamma National Catholic Fraternity was founded at Loyola in 1924. From here they spread to fourteen other schools.

Until 1957 physical hazing was the method used for pledging. At that time a group of R.O.T.C. cadets, believing that there must be a better way to pledge, formed their own fraternity, stressed a mental type of pledge program, and called themselves Sigma Delta Phi. This brought about a profound change in the fraternity system at Loyola; most of the fraternities followed the example of Sigma Delta Phi and changed over from a physically rigorous to a psychologically rigorous program.

The Greek system has been growing stronger since 1929 when Interfraternity Council was founded. This growth was halted for a time during World War II when Greeks all but disappeared from campus life; the Greek system endured, however, and has been growing larger and powerfully influential ever since.

At present there are seven hundred Greeks at Loyola in ten fraternities and six sororities.

With the exception of the student government, the I. F. C. is the most powerful of the approximately hundred and twenty organizations in the school and the Greeks dominate the leadership of every facet of student life.

Alpha Sigma Phi,

As a report on the status of the Greek Fraternity system at Loyola University, I'm happy to relate a few pertinent facts.

Of the 11 active Fraternities on this campus, 8 are social, and of these, 5 own their own House. Aside from independent organizations, the Greeks have organized, and run, the Homecoming, Christmas, and Spring festivals for the past 10 years. As a recent example, Loyola's "Christmas in Camelot" was solely successful by the efforts of the Greeks on campus. Specifically, of the 8 awards given for the different activities through the weekend, 7 were awarded to the Greek letter societies. Loyola has a unique position, in that 80% of its student body is composed of commuter students. This percentage is subject to a radical change due to a recent construction of University buildings, in particular, a 19 story Mens Dorm residence; therefore opening the field for further Rush.

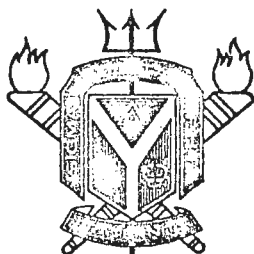

The Greeks are to be found in every facet of University life. They are not only on the Basketball team, Track team, Soccer team, Swimming team but also run the Student Newspaper, Student Government, Honor Societies, Academic Societies, and Dorm Councils. The Greek system, to put it mildly, has grown leaps and bounds in the past year and a half, and also shows indications of growing greater still. It is almost doubled its membership since 1965, as evidenced by the larger and larger pledge classes. The larger fraternities have a membership between 75 and 100 members.

Due to its size, Loyola is considered a small University. This may be the reason that many of the large Nationals have not colonized here. However, due to the growth of the Greek system, felt not only on this campus, but through out the Midwest through I. F. C. Conventions, Loyola has been gaining a reputation of being a strong Greek campus. I feel that Loyola will no longer be ignored by the large Nationals, because they will see the value of this "virgin territory." The Greek System at Loyola is influential, if not completely instrumental, in all the extracurricular activities on the University level.

I remain sincerely,

In late 1957, a small group of Loyola University students decided to form a new fraternity. The reasons which led them to this decision have remained as the basic purposes of Sigma Delta Phi. As formulated in the Constitution, these reasons are four:

"To unite a body of men into a living creed upon whose continuous achievements rests the foundation of the future; to benefit its Brothers academically, morally, and physically, as well as socially; to be led by principle, rather than be governed by special interests; and to promote brotherly love and advancements among its brothers."

It was with these purposes in mind that Sigma Delta Phi fraternity was established at Loyola University on January 2, 1958. On that day a Constitution was passed, officers were elected, and a social activity program was begun. From June, 1958 until June, 1959, the fraternity was in a probationary status. At that time, it was recognized as an approved organization of the University, granted a charter, and accepted as a full member of the Interfraternity Council.

After the first five months of its existence, Sigma Delta Phi numbered forty active men. The central elements which attracted these new brothers were the uniqueness which characterized the fraternity; the policy of moderate cost to the Brother, and the absence of physical hazing, which was supplanted by a program of "mental hazing" designed to develop the pledge through a constructive pledge program.

The new fraternity naturally encountered many problems in its earlier years, both in organization and in growth. However, the progressive attitude given to it by its founding fathers helped overcome these and eventually brought notice from the University community. Sigma Delta Phi's most important contribution to the school in its beginning years was the idea it originated for Greek Week. The concept was adopted by the Interfraternity Council and has remained as an outstanding display of interfraternity co-operation. A few years later, Sigma Delta Phi originated Loyola's Garrigan Historical Film Series. In 1960, Sigma Delta Phi was awarded the Blue Key for Social Activity, and in 1963 it was named Loyola's organization of the Year. From 1963 to 1966, Sigma Delta Phi won the interfraternity sing without a miss.

OFFICE OF THE DEAN OF STUDENTS

7025 W. Cornelia
Chicago, Illinois 60634
October 5, 1967

24 Williams Street

Dear Sir:

It has been brought to my attention that Sigma Delta Phi, a local fraternity of Loyola University (Chicago), has petitioned for membership within the Alpha Sigma Phi national fraternity system. It is with great pleasure and enthusiasm that I write this letter of recommendation in behalf of Sigma Delta Phi.

From my own personal experiences, both social and utilitarian, with members of this organization, I have been able to gauge the fine qualities to be found therein. Without any reservations, therefore, I must state that this fraternity, as a whole, exhibits those particular qualities necessary for active participation within a fine national-----

These men constitute a highly spirited group with drive, desire, and organization. This is most apparent because of their: large size, intramural records, academic achievements, services rendered to both the school and the student body, and their willingness to engage in interfraternity functions.

In other words, the members of Sigma Delta Phi contribute wholeheartedly in any endeavor they undertake; they always seem to give more than they are required to give. Because of this selfless attitude, they have gained and held the respect of all the Greek societies at Loyola.

As president of the Interfraternity Council of Loyola, I have never been disappointed with their response within that organization. At the same time, as a Loyola student, I am happy to count many friends within their membership.

All in all, I firmly believe that Sigma Delta Phi is a worthy and deserving organization, one that could function well within a national fraternity system.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Madison:

It is my pleasure to recommend to the Grand Council of Alpha Sigma Phi, the installation of the local fraternity Sigma Delta Phi of Loyola University as an affiliate member.

Sigma Delta Phi is not only one of the largest and most powerful groups on the Loyola campus, but to me it is a group with a purpose. They always participate in extra curricular activities both on the university level and with the other fraternities. Their efforts to help less fortunate people in their "Help Week" project of their pledge program has not gone unnoticed. They have also compiled informative literature about their fraternity which I have not even seen from national fraternities on campus.

In the short time that I have been at Loyola, the brothers of Sigma Delta Phi have made me feel extremely welcome. They have gone out of their way to work hand in hand with the administration in both fraternity and university matters.

I, therefore, highly recommend, without reservation, that Sigma Delta Phi be inducted as a chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Sincerely,

Brothers of Alpha Sigma Phi National Fraternity

Dear Brothers of Alpha Sigma Phi:

I have been asked to write a letter of recommendation by the Brothers of Sigma Delta Phi, a local fraternity at Loyola University, whose application is now under study by your national organization. It is a pleasure for me to do so.

Although they will have to petition the University for the approval of national status, I am sure their record will stand them in good stead. During the time that I have been at Loyola, I have become very aware of the character and attitude of the Brothers of Sigma Delta Phi. They have a good image on this campus and work very hard as a fraternity. They are represented well in all facets of University life, not only as a fraternity, but as student leaders on campus as well. They are very much visible in Student Government, student activities and student leadership around the Loyola Campus. I am sure that they will be strengthened by their involvement with your national organization and will, thereby, provide even greater leadership and service to Loyola University.

It is my sincere wish that you find them worthy of membership and that Loyola University finds them equally worthy of participation as a national organization on this campus.

Sincerely,

Dear Sirs:

In the seven years that I have been acquainted with the brothers of Sigma Delta Phi Fraternity I have come to know them as a group of fine gentlemen.

I have found them to be achieving honors not only academically, but also in sports, student government, and in public services as well. In 1962 they received the Loyola Blue Key Award for the Outstanding Organization of the Year.

In the ten years of their existence they have become the pacesetters and standard bearers among the fraternities on campus. They will be an asset to your fine organization.

Dear Sirs:

It has been my great privilege to have been associated with the Brothers of Sigma Delta Phi Fraternity for the last four years as an honorary Brother. I have never taken this honor lightly nor have they. In the many instances that I observed the Brothers at their parties, their ceremonies their intra-school activities, and some of them in their studies I have always been impressed by their conduct and attitude. They are unique as a group but have not sacrificed their individuality for conformity.

Student government, the Activities Board, and the Inter-Fraternity Council has seen more than its fair share of Sigma Deltas as officers. The Brothers of Sigma Delta Phi are outstanding individuals and thusly is their organization as a whole. I am proud to have been even an honorary membebr.

Dear Sir:

I would like to recommend a group of men that I have just recently become more acquainted with in the last year and a half. I met many of them in my classes and from there I got to know the entire group. I have chaperoned many of their parties and have been made to feel more a part of their group than even a guest would be. From my close contact with them I have noticed their many other activities in relation to other organizations, their university, and to their community. These men have always been extraordinary in setting and striving for their goals.

Sigma Delta Phi Fraternity is by far, in my opinion, the superior fraternity at Loyola. They are unequalled in their field of activities and variety of talents all of which they put to good use.

The addition of a group such as Sigma Delta Phi Fraternity would, beyond a doubt, be an asset to any organization. The fact that these men have chosen Alpha Sigma Phi themselves demonstrates to the other organizations on campus what a tremendous group Alpha Sigma Phi must be to attract the men of Alpha Sigma Phi. I wish you both the best of a fine relationship.

Gentlemen:

It has been brought to my attention that Sigma Delta Phi Fraternity is seeking affiliation with your organization and now is in the process of colonization.

I have been in much contact with this group since I have been President and since I realized a fraternity system existed at Loyola. The Sigma Deltas are a fine group of men. They are a group in which manhood and responsibility are not strangers.

Though young, they are definitely a powerful source of influence and leadership at Loyola and one which I feel will add to your national organization tremendously.

Sigma delta Phi is a great competitor. They are a participative group of men as is testified by the positions held by individual members.

In conclusion, I think you have made a wise decision in electing Sigma Delta Phi for membership in your organization.

Alpha Sigma Phi

The brothers of Sigma Delta Phi have been highly successful since the formation of their fraternity at Loyola University. They have actively participated in all facets of university life. The brothers have been active in student government, the Interfraternity Council, athletic events, and all other school activities too numerous to mention here.

Fraternally, they have developed strong feelings of brotherhood and traditions have evolved as a result of dedication and interest in Sigma Delta Phi. Only true unity of purpose could have brought the brothers the status of owning their fraternity house and being one of the most prominent fraternities on campus.

Dear Jim,

The Brothers of Delta Sigma Phi National Fraternity, Loyola Colony, are happy to recommend Sigma Delta Phi Local Fraternnity in its petition for affiliation with Alpha Sigma Phi National Fraternity. We realize that your organization has been active on our campus both fraternally and individualistically. Such activities have paid off well for we are of the opinion that within the past few years your organization has advanced to the status of one of "The Top" organizations on this and the Lewis Towers Campus. Having the large membership that your organization does, in conjunction with its diversified interests, shows that there is also a great promise for the future. Delta Sigma Phi National Fraternity therefore congratulates Sigma Delta Phi on its decision to become affiliated with a national organization for they will benefit greatly from you just as you will from them.

Sincerely Yours,

KAPPA BETA GAMMA

Dear Brothers of Alpha Sigma Phi,
I've been informed (by means of a newspaper article in our student weekly) that the brothers of Sigma Delta Phi are now pledges of Alpha Sigma Phi.

As President of one of the larger Greek organizations on Loyola's campus, I have had ample opportunity to work with the Sigma Delta and see them in "action."

The Sigma Delta are among the top three fraternities at Loyola University.
They've contributed much to Greek life at our campus, and to collegiate life in general.

At present, Sigma Delta hold offices in the Inter-Fraternity Council, offices in the Student Government, and organizations like the Psych club, Young Republicans, and R.O.T.C.

For the sixth consecutive year, the Sigma Delta have captured the
I. F. C. song trophy and now will keep it permanently. Also, Loyola's Greek Greek activities are chaired by a Sigma Delta.

In general, the Sigma Deltas are recognized by all, as leaders at this University. For this reason, I would like to recommend this colony for full brotherhood in Alpha Sigma Chi.

Sincerely,

To: The Brothers of Alpha Sigma Phi
Alpha Sigma Phi National Fraternity

Dear Brothers of Alpha Sigma Phi:

We, the Brothers of Phi Kappa Theta International Fraternity, are aware of the fact that Sigma Delta Phi, local Fraternity at Loyola, is petitioning your organization for National status. Affiliation with your nationwide chapters would enhance the standing of Sigma Delta Phi on campus, and we are certain that they would reciprocate the honor. Therefore, we are whole heartedly behind any and all efforts which are being made to attain this goal.

During their years on campus Sigma Delta Phi has distinguished itself in the four-fold aim of scholarship, leadership, service, and the building of character. They have provided support and drive for every major function at Loyola. Their members are known around campus, and we are proud that they are in the Greek fold.

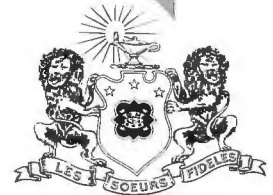

We know that the addition of another National Fraternity will strengthen the Greek aspect of college life here at Loyola. They, in turn, have chosen a fine National Fraternity with which they wish to be affiliated. Accepting them would be a beneficial move for both parties.

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern:

During the past few years, it has been my sincere pleasure to know the Brothers of Sigma Delta Phi. In my opinion, the members of the fraternity exemplify all the best qualities of fraternity men anywhere. They participate, both as a group and as individuals, in all forms of student activity -- student government, the IFC, University Weekend, and Homecoming Weekend, to mention just a few. They also lend support to some important charity drives -- the American Cancer Society and the Heart Fund.

To my own relatively new chapter, they have given support and encouragement far beyond that expected from other Greek organizations.

Here at Loyola, the Brothers of Sigma Delta Phi have contributed a great deal to improving the entire Greek system. They are a credit to themselves, their families, and their fraternity.

Sincerely,

President

"A fraternity is not quite like any other organization of which I know. It has its tangible, visible side — its organizational materials, its officers; its chapters, its chapter houses, its members — but these do not set it apart. The college fraternity has grown and set a high place for itself because of its intangibles — the things of spirit and attitude, of devotion and service, of friendships and ideals. For more than a hundred years, fraternities have more than justified their place in the world of education by giving guidance, training, close and abiding friendships, and lasting inspiration to their own members and, through their living of fraternity principles, to the college campuses and the civic communities of which they are parts. Many organizations serve the underprivileged. Have you ever realized that the college fraternity is practically alone today in serving effectively and constructively the highly privileged and vitally important group of college students who will be the leaders of tomorrow and upon the quality of whose leadership the future of our democratic processes — of our very own way of life — depends?"

why a fraternity?

The Fraternity system is as old as the United States. In 1776 Phi Beta Kappa, the first college fraternity was organized. Originally established as a social and fraternal order, it was the foundation of the present fraternity system.

As pointed out in the opening quotes, fraternities are characterized by that certain group of traits, the intangibles, which distinguish it from clubs or other similar organizations. It is these traits which provide the best reasons for pledging a fraternity. The most important would probably be the following five:

- 1 — Fraternities give their members a sense of belonging.
- 2 — Fraternities develop leadership in their members.
- 3 — Fraternities develop citizenship.
- 4 — Fraternities encourage scholarship.
- 5 — Fraternities increase the chance of graduating.

A Sense of Belonging

The first thing the college fraternity does for its members is offer that feeling of belonging, which is essential for all college students but especially for the incoming freshman. By becoming a part of a closely knit group that takes a definite interest in his activities, he is more easily able to cope with the abrupt change that college suddenly presents to him. At the same time, each member is forming friendships that will last throughout his life.

Leadership

Each fraternity offers its members the opportunity to learn to accept responsibility, to make decisions and to carry out worthwhile programs requiring careful planning. College activities are more often than not headed by fraternity men. By directing the affairs of a small group, the fraternity, an individual cannot help but gain the self confidence which could bring him even bigger opportunities. "Fraternities provide leadership training and practical application in competitive situations similar to those in the business world," says H. C. Mueller, President, Powers Regulator

Company. "In giving opportunity for experience in organization, cooperation and management they prepare individuals for future responsibilities."

Citizenship

An important part of every college fraternity is being a good citizen to the community in which they exist. A good example of this might be the replacement of the pre-initiation Hell Week by constructive group efforts now known as Help Week by many college fraternities. Many chapters also run charity drives or other fund raising events for various institutions. Working together in this civic-minded attitude is one reason why such a high proportion of members win places of importance in civic and national affairs. Over 200 members of Congress (68 Senators and 146 Representatives) belong to college fraternities.

Encourages Scholarship

A recent survey of fraternity pledges at the University of Illinois showed that nearly three-fourths (73.8%) chose scholarship as their most important motive for pledging.

The fraternity is vitally concerned with the scholastic endeavors of its members. Advice and counsel is forthcoming from those older brothers who are especially capable in providing mature assistance. Programs of various sorts aid and encourage members to put forth their best efforts at study. It is a fact that more than half of all fraternity chapters are above the All-Men's Average in institutions reporting to the National Interfraternity Conference. Acceptance for membership in a fraternity is conditional upon scholastic achievement, and in this way there is more incentive placed upon the prospective pledge to establish diligent study habits.

Increases Chances of Graduation

Naturally every student entering college plans on graduating and earning his degree. However, a certain proportion must drop out, or be forced out by poor grades. According to a U.S. Government study (HEW Bulletin No. 1958-1), a student's chance of graduation will definitely increase if he pledges a fraternity. The survey showed that members of fraternities and sororities had a record of 59 percent in "persistence to graduation" as against only 47 percent for non-members. The explanation comes from the encouragement for better scholarship coupled with the bonds of friendship and mutual interest shared in a college fraternity.

Fraternities obviously have more to them than their "intangible" side. They are undoubtedly recognized as the greatest socializing force today on our country's campuses. Some of the more tangible advantages, then, to fraternity membership might be that a fraternity tends to:

1. Encourage the individual to participate in all types of activity, e.g., social, spiritual, etc.
2. Provide smaller units of group housing.
3. Develop a greater sense of loyalty to the college.
4. Promote group self-government.
5. Provide an opportunity for participating in campus politics.
6. Provide opportunities to participate in the business and management activities of running the fraternity house.
7. Develop one socially.
8. Develop lasting friendships.
9. Provide an outlet for use of leisure time.

The Responsibilities of Membership

Attainment of membership in a fraternity is in itself of no real significance. What is essentially noteworthy is what you do for others and for yourself while in the fraternity. Note, the purpose for which you and your prospective fraternity brothers have come to college is primarily academic. Your main job at the University is to study and learn. As a fraternity man, you will still have this basic responsibility.

As a member of a group you will be constantly assessed by non-members. Their assessments will not be confined to you, but will be associated with your entire group. The image you convey will be considered a reflection of the group; hence, as a brother, you will have a responsibility to convey a favorable impression of the fraternity.

You will have a responsibility to each of your fellow brothers, in that you must cooperate with them harmoniously. In doing so you will help them, and yourself, to advance toward that sense of human dignity and mutual obligation which is characteristic of every really great man.

Perhaps, one of your greatest responsibilities is to yourself, to develop a wholesome and forceful personality. In addition, you are seriously indebted to the generosity of those who have made possible your attendance at college. Your scholastic efforts are appraised by these persons, and you are obliged to produce academically according to your potential. Your membership in a fraternity will increase your awareness of these responsibilities.

Why Sigma Delta Phi?

In late 1957, a small group of Loyola University students decided to form a new fraternity. The reasons which led them to this decision have remained as the basic purposes of Sigma Delta Phi. As formulated in the Constitution, these reasons are four:

"To unite a body of men into a living creed upon whose continuous achievements rests the foundation for the future; to benefit its Brothers academically, morally, and physically, as well as socially; to be led by principle, rather than be governed by special interests; and to promote brotherly love and advancements among its Brothers."

It was with these purposes in mind that Sigma Delta Phi Fraternity was established at Loyola University on January 2nd, 1958. On that day a Constitution was passed, officers were elected, and a social activity program was begun. From June, 1958 until June, 1959, the Fraternity was in a probationary status. At that time, it was recognized as an approved organization of the University, granted a charter, and accepted as a full member of the Interfraternity Council.

After the first five months of its existence, Sigma Delta Phi numbered forty active men. The central elements which attracted these new brothers were the uniqueness which characterized the fraternity; the policy of moderate cost to the Brother, and the absence of physical hazing, which was supplanted by a program of 'mental hazing' designed to develop the pledge through a constructive pledge program.

The new fraternity naturally encountered many problems in its earlier years, both in organization and in growth. However, the progressive attitude given to it by its founding fathers helped overcome these and eventually brought notice from the University community. Sigma Delta Phi's most important contribution to the school in its beginning years was the idea it originated for Greek Week. The concept was adopted by the Interfraternity Council and has remained as an outstanding display of interfraternity cooperation. A few years later, Sigma Delta Phi originated Loyola's Garrigan Historical Film series. In 1960, Sigma Delta Phi was awarded the Blue Key for Social Activity, and in 1963 it was named Loyola's Organization of the Year. From 1963 to 1966, Sigma Delta Phi won the Interfraternity Sing without a miss.

Sigma Delta Phi Today

Now, after more than ten years of existence, the Fraternity consists of more than seventy-five active brothers, yet neither its uniqueness nor its policies concerning finances and pledging have changed. Since its founding, the financial responsibility of the

Teamwork as well as individual effort is the key to success

Help Week, a Sigma Delt first

Brother has remained unchanged, and Sigma Delta Phi is still undoubtedly the most economical to belong to of Loyola's ten fraternities. As far as its pledge program goes, Sigma Delta Phi still adheres to its strict policy of no physical hazing. The fraternity feels that it can much more effectively develop and educate a pledge through the use of a mental pledge program rather than a physical one. Another example of its progressive attitude is its recent addition of a pre-induction Help Week to its pledge program. During the week before pledging ends, the pledges travel to some institution, such as a parish or school, to volunteer the services and work in any way that might be needed. Last semester's pledge class spent their Help Week cleaning the grounds and buildings of St. Martin's Parish on Chicago's south side.

Like any other fraternity, Sigma Dela Phi endeavors to develop leadership in its brothers, in this way both bettering themselves and the community in which they operate, both civic and university. Sigma Delta Phi's success in this department can be seen by observing the accomplishments of its Brothers in the past year alone. As far as Student Government goes, the fraternity was well-represented. In the Arts Council, Sigma Delts held the offices of President, Treasurer, Chairman of the Student Duplicating Service, Editor of the Student Council Communique, and the Nursing Council Representative. In the school of Business Administration, the positions of secretary and treasurer of the Sophomore Class were filled by Sigma Delts. In the Tri-Council, a confederation of the councils from each of three colleges, two out of six delegates as well as the chairman were all Sigma Delts. The recently adopted Loyola Student Government Association was written and founded by a brother. The first elections saw Sigma Delts elected as the Senior Class President and as one of the Junior Class Vice Presidents. The Student Activities Board of Loyola has Sigma Delts as two of its ten representatives.

For two successive terms, the Interfraternity Council had for its President a Sigma Delt, followed this year by Sigma Delta Phi gaining two of the other five elective offices: Vice-President and Student Activities Board Delegate. The constitution foundation of the Independent Board, a council of all the various extra-curricular clubs on campus, was drawn and laid by a Sigma Delt, who also served as the Board's Vice-Chairman. As far as the clubs in the Independent Board go, Sigma Delts have held the offices of: President of the Young Republicans, President of the Fine Arts Club, Layout Editor of the Yearbook, Vice-President and Treasurer of the Conservative Club, Vice-President and Alumni Secretary of the Blue Key National Honor Fraternity, and Treasurer and Secretary of the Military organization Scabbard and Blade. As far as relations with the sororities on campus go, two of the last three Kappa Knights were Sigma Delts, as well as last year's Sweetheart of Phi Mu.

Sigma Delts are also found in community activities. Besides the Help Week policy mentioned above, Sigma Delts run annual fund-raising drives and dances for various charities as well as collections such as the recent "Christmas in July" project.

The Fraternity House

The Sigma Delta Phi Fraternity House, located at 1062 W. Columbia, three blocks north of campus, is the center of the fraternity's operations. The three-story brick building provides a meeting place for the Brothers as well as providing housing for about twenty-five of them. The house is also the center of social activity, being the scene of several informal parties a semester. Other than this, the Fraternity's social program also includes an annual formal, several off-campus parties, one or two mixers at the Campus Center, and many other activities such as hayrides, beach parties, road rallies, etc. On the spiritual side, there is an annual retreat held at the fraternity house.

Athletics

Athletically, Sigma Delta Phi participates in all of the school's intramural programs: football, basketball, and softball; as well as in all of the Greek Week Games: track, swimming, handball, and chariot racing. The Fraternity has several athletic prizes in its trophy case, their biggest victory coming in last semester's exciting Greek Week Track Meet, when they edged out an exciting 35-33 win over the runner-up team. Besides athletics, Sigma Delta Phi also competes against other University organizations in several other contests each year; for example, Pow-Wow

Outdoors or in, competition runs strong

The Red Baron gives a lift to University Weekend

Weekend, Homecoming, the Miss Loyola Contest, the Variety Show, and University Weekend. By their participation in all these various endeavors, Sigma Delta Phi is constantly striving to satisfy the varied interests of all its Brothers.

Alumni Chapter

The Alumni Chapter of Sigma Delta Phi was founded to foster the growth and development of the active chapter and to provide social activity for the Alumni Brothers. The formerly active Brothers, as alumni, are in a position to advise and counsel the younger Brothers.

The Chapter helps to continue the ideals of Brotherhood through one's entire life. The friendships formed in the undergraduate years are not allowed to fall aside and wither; instead, these bonds are made stronger through frequent gatherings, at which the alumni continually strive to sustain these relationships.

The Alumni Brothers also form the board of directors and serve as the officers of the Sigma Delta Phi House Corporation, which manages the Fraternity House. Their experience in this area has proved to be of great value to the active chapter.

The Chapter also serves to enlarge contacts in the business world. By having a closely-knit alumni organization, the Fraternity, both active and alumni, is able to communicate with a diversified number of fields, which yield a wide variety of job opportunities. Later in life, these contacts may prove invaluable.
