

Ideas Shared at 1965 Educational Conference

"Let's initiate, rather than imitate!"

With that challenge in mind, 96 undergraduate Brothers representing 41 Chapters from coast to coast gathered this summer on the campus of Morris-Harvey College in Charleston, W. Va.

The meeting was Alpha Sigma Phi's 1965 Educational Conference, the objective to discuss ways of enriching fraternity life.

Theme of the August 25-28 Conference was "Education for Leadership."

For the second time, the Conference was directed by Brother John J. Blackburn, grand junior president of the Fraternity and dean of men at the University of Alabama.

He was assisted by Dr. Frank J. Krebs, grand historian and vice president for student affairs at Morris-Harvey; James L. Fisher, chief of Province XVII in Charleston; and H. Richard Kennell, resident hall director at Morris-Harvey.

Following registration on Wednesday afternoon, August 25, delegates met faculty members and heard the purposes of the Conference outlined by Brother Blackburn at an opening convocation.

That evening, Brother J. Edward Drew, California '16, head of his public relations firm in New York City, was speaker at the opening banquet. The group was welcomed to the campus by Morris-Harvey Vice President James W. Rowley, and Brother Krebs served as toastmaster.

In his keynote address, Brother Drew challenged representatives to bring solid, clear thinking into their judgments and decisions on a chapter level.

Delegates were presidents of chapters for the academic year 1965-66 and Brothers who were chosen outstanding pledges from their chapters during the academic year 1964-65.

PRESENTATION of the Army Commendation Medal is made to Colonel Virgil B. Culberson, right, by Colonel Bert de Melker. Looking on are Mrs. Culberson and L. H. Littrell, chief of the Military Branch, U. S. Army Engineer Division, Missouri River.

Alpha Sig Receives Commendation Medal

On Sept. 30 U.S. Air Force Colonel Virgil B. Culberson, Alabama '34, received the Army Commendation Medal at the headquarters of the U. S. Army Engineers' Missouri River Division. Brother Culberson, Air Force regional civil engineer in Omaha since July 1962 retired this fall.

Colonel Bert de Melker, Ohio State '30, acting Missouri River Division engineer, presented the Medal at a ceremony held in his office. The Commendation was signed by Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor and former Missouri River Division Engineer Major General George H. Walker.

In presenting the Medal to Brother Culberson, Colonel de Melker said that it is in recognition of the unusual perception and competence with which he monitored design and construction of massive Air Force projects built by Army engineers during the past three years.

These projects include North American Air Defense (NORAD) headquarters inside Cheyenne Mountain, Colorado and range from the new Air Force Hospital at Offutt Air Force Base in Nebraska to Air Force Academy facilities in Colorado.

The Citation states that Colonel Culberson "... coordinated and monitored changing Air Force engineering construction programs that were unique and unprecedented, particularly with respect to magnitude and complexity . . . generated by exploding technological and scientific advances. His keen judgment, perseverance, and outstanding leadership constituted a significant contribution to the successful accomplishment of the mission of the Corps of Engineers. Colonel Culberson's outstanding performance of duty throughout this period reflects great credit upon himself, the U. S. Air Force and the Military Service."

Colonel Culberson was one of the original officers who established aviation engineer battalions and regiments and helped to build airfields in the Soviet Union during World War II.

He was assigned to the Strategic Air Command at McDill Field in 1948 and in 1954 became Chief of Construction at SAC Headquarters, Offutt AFB. He was then transferred to USAFE Headquarters, Wiesbaden, Germany and remained there until his assignment at Omaha as Missouri River Regional Civil Engineer.

Commencement
Luncheon

Educational Conference

Using the case study approach, the program was set up so that a recognized authority on each topic led the discussion. The thinking, experiences and problems in each area were discussed, with individual and local slants given airings when they could contribute to the debates.

Participation proved enthusiastic not only at morning and afternoon group classes, but during evening sessions as well.

Delegates were asked to think of themselves as "middle-men" preparing to carry ideas and methods gleaned from the Conference back to the Brothers in their individual chapters.

They were divided into groups, each group attending two sessions on four major subjects and one session consisting of two other subjects.

Group leaders and their subjects were:

Educational Objectives of the Chapter—John L. Blackburn, grand junior president; Chapter Scholarship—Belford Roberts, business manager and treasurer, Morris-Harvey College; Chapter Finance—Robert L. King, fraternity auditor, University of Alabama; Community Relationships—C. William Brown, assistant dean of men, Purdue University; Rushing—L. Eugene Cooper, dean of men, University of South Carolina; Fraternity Atmosphere in Achieving Objectives—Robert E. Miller, a member of the Grand Council and administrative assistant for men's affairs at the University of Connecticut.

Convocations were led by James L. Fisher (Ritual); Executive Sect. Ralph F. Burns (Chapter Administration), and Brother Robert A. Sandercox, dean of students at Bethany College.

Brother Sandercox urged representatives to note well the changes in higher education and the consequent responsibilities the "Old Gal" faces in meeting these changes.

A final examination was given on Saturday morning, August 28. Certificates then were awarded to representatives completing the school, Brother Blackburn making presentations.

Emphasis throughout the Conference was on developing ideas of leadership rather than attempting to present rigid rules or procedures.
