NUMBER 4

Until recently the tendency in our fraternity was to set up various independent offices responsible only to the convention and to the individual conscience of the officer in question. The theory of such an arrangement was apparently that a concentration of power was dangerous. If our officers cannot be trusted with extensive powers they are not worthy of their office.

DIVISION OF RESPONSIBILITY

The Grand Prudential Committee is in fact the supreme authority between conventions. Yet, one important function of the fraternity—the publication of THE TOMAHAWK—is only partially in the hands of the Committee. The Committee is charged with seeing that the routine work in connection with the magazine is done, and is also responsible for the finances of our quarterly. The office of Editor is only partly under their control. The Grand Prudential Committee is placed in a difficult position of being responsible for a magazine edited by an officer not elected by it and over whom its only control is the power of removal for cause.

It is probable that the fraternity will soon be asked to remedy this condition by a constitutional amendment. The present editorial staff of THE TOMAHAWK wish to go on record before the fraternity as advocating the abolition of the office of Editor of THE TOMAHAWK and the transfer of the full control of the magazine to the Grand Prudential Committee and its duly appointed agents. This change will not affect the members, active or alumni.

This will insure uniformity of policy and will place THE TOMAHAWK where it belongs—under the direct supervision of the Grand Prudential Committee, as all other functions of the management of the fraternity are or should be.

It is pleasing to be able to note that affairs are progressing to the point where our chapters may be called upon to act on petitions for charters during the next year. It is to be hoped that no chapter will vote adversely on a petition because of any faults and unwarranted feeling of conservatism, nor because of a foolish prejudice against a rival institution. This last cause of objection has always been a source of difficulty. Why is it that a local, in every way worthy to become a chapter is condemned by a nearby chapter merely because of its location in a rival college? The chapter that is inclined to vote adversely on such grounds should always remember that it is probably accidental that they are not the petitioning body and the local to which they so strenuously object the dissenting chapter.

There was, and apparently there still is, dissatisfaction in some quarters over the jewelry situation. The agitation for a Western jeweler was in reality a protest against our system of government. Our distant chapters can never get the same speed in delivery of badges until we adopt a province system. This does not appear feasible at present. In the meantime, it is up to the Western chapter to place their orders as far ahead as possible. The jeweler cannot be blamed for the time taken by the United States Mail.

A second criticism that has been made is due to the progressive changes in the contour of the badge resulting from changes in the official jeweler combined with a lack of definite specifications for the construction of the badge. The original badge of Alpha Sigma Phi was a flat gold slab with the shield inlaid. Subsequently, the surface of the badge was bowed up and the shield raised. There is a tendency on the part of some to advocate an extreme bowing and elevation of the shield. This should be avoided, as it is causing the badge to depart considerably from the appearance of the original design, and, if not restrained, will lead to an object resembling a potato-bug on a chip, quite unrecognizable as the square badge bearing the "open book and pen" of Alpha Sigma Phi.

In this issue of THE TOMAHAWK we present the pictures of our chapter houses, insofar as they are available. We believe OUR CHAPTER HOUSES that the achievements of our various chapters in solving their housing problems are worthy of a feeling of pride and satisfaction to all our members. Your chapter can only succeed in its housing campaign if every member does his share. Can you look at the cut of your chapter house and feel that you have contributed to the extent of your duty and ability?

In this issue of THE TOMAHAWK we present the interesting and inspiring address made by Prof. John D. Fitz-Gerald at the Chicago Convention Banquet. While not on fraternity matters, it is an article which every HISPANO-AMERICAN IDEALS one of us will read with profit, and from which we can learn much. The Alpha Sig who reads this article and gets the message it conveys will be a better citizen and so a better fraternity member.

PROFESSOR J. D. FITZ-GERALD

“ADDRESS BEFORE THE CONVENTION”

JOHN DRISCOLL FITZ-GERALD

Columbia 1895, Eta 1912

Professor of Spanish, University of Illinois

BEFORE I begin with the topic that has been assigned to me I have a debt to perform to those of the old Alpha Sigma Phi members from Eta who, for some years past, have had a sister in Alpha Sigma Phi. I suppose you thought this was only a fraternity; but this is a fraternity with a lot of sisters. When the delegates from our chapter at Illinois came over to my office and asked me about my connection with fraternities I had to admit I was only a Phi Beta Kappa. Of course that didn't count for what they wanted. My wife at that time was going to their dances as their chaperon and of course they had to ask me to come and bring her, and they finally decided they wanted her for a sister and so they came over and asked me if I would join. (Laughter.) The last thing my wife said as I was going to the train was to tell the old boys that she sent them her love and that she wished she could have been with them last night.

Now Brother Shobe didn't tell me that story about the length of the speech being short enough to suit modern styles. In fact, I believe the newest styles call for longer skirts. Now you know what you are in for, since I do not have to make a short speech.

HISPANO-AMERICAN IDEALS

Hispano-American ideals are a thing that we in the north need to know more about than we do. International relations are always subject to a lot of personal and national prejudices. We do not think much of the man ordinarily called a greaser. You know we don't. If you live down along the southwest border, where I spent the last two summers, you know it means worse than you think it does before you go there. Well, now, the Mexican thinks just about as much of us when he calls any of us a gringo. When you call him a greaser and he calls you a gringo he thinks he is just about square. (Laughter.)

We had down at our university a student, a young man, who did not quite realize the necessity for the international amenities, and he said to one of the Orientals: "Which one of the 'ese' are you, Chinese or Japanese?" Quick as a flash the Oriental said, "Which one of the keys are you, Yankee or monkey?" (Laughter.) Well, I think we must get rid of some of that if we are going to make the progress that we ought to hope to make.

Now, at last, despite our separation from the world at large, we realize that we really are not separated, and that we have a man's job, not as an isolated nation but as a nation that is associated with others. The seas still exist, but they are not the same seas for duration of time that separated us from Europe when Washington made his memorable speech. Still less are they the same seas, in this time-sense, that separated us from Europe when Columbus made the trip across. I hope some of you saw the little caravels that were exhibited here in Chicago at the time of the Columbus Exhibition. I hope you took duly into account the courage it must have taken to man those ships and bring them across unknown seas, even the courage it must have taken to man those ships in 1903 and bring them across known seas. Now we are nearer together and we must learn to get along together.

I presume we have more in common—I am speaking now of all of the western hemisphere—than we realize that we have. I shall come back to that statement a little later, but during the war John Barrett, who occupied a position of strategic importance for finding out what South America thought on the war questions, sent around a statement to hundreds of papers in South America, giving what he thought were the ideals that America stood for, America north and south. Nine hundred papers printed it. Eight hundred and fifty-two of them gave favorable editorials to his presentation of what were common American ideals, north and south, Latin and Anglo-Saxon. Don't you think that it is a little staggering that a man who was the international officer of the Pan-American Union should be able to make a statement that nine hundred South American newspapers would print and display, not put it in the waste basket, and concerning which 852 newspapers would give favorable comment? Doesn't that indicate something in common that perhaps you did not realize we had?

There have been various boundary disputes in Latin America. One of them has had an interesting history that I want to give you later. Another one has had a more recent history that you know something about, because the papers are full of it, the Costa Rica-Panama boundary dispute, which originally started as the Colombia-Costa Rica boundary dispute in the days before Panama existed as a separate country. Of course Panama's northern boundary is what was Colombia's northern boundary, whatever that boundary was or is, so when the state became independent there came a new boundary dispute in which Costa Rica dealt with Panama as an independent state and no longer with Colombia. There had been an award which both parties decided to reject on the ground that the arbitrator had gone outside his instructions. Both countries agreed that he had. Both countries agreed to reject the decision of President Loubet of France. Then they decided to have another arbitrator, our own Chief Justice White, and the case has been hanging for several years. I think it was in 1910 that I came into relation with the case, as translator of the Costa Rican brief. Later Chief Justice White decided that he would have all the briefs submitted in the original and that he would then have his own translator translate them. Previously each side had been having its own translation made. So I lost contact with the case when it reached that stage. You know what has recently happened. There has been some friction, but on the whole the award has gone through, and there has not been the kind of situation that there might have been.

If you know South American geography you know there is a place called Ecuador on the west coast. As you look at it you see that it sticks into the mainland in a funny shape, and that shape varies according to whose map of South America you are looking at, whether it was made by an Ecuadorian, or a Colombian, on the north and east, or a Peruvian on the south and east, the Colombian and Peruvian claims actually overlapping east of Ecuador. Each one of those countries claims this piece of territory. That boundary dispute has not yet wholly been settled.

The simpler one between Peru and Ecuador likewise has not been settled, but they have not been fighting about it. They chose as arbitrator, way back in 1904, the King of Spain. He sent over an expert and each country submitted all the documents it could to prove its contention. The Royal Commissioner, Ramón Menéndez Pidal, reported to the King his findings, and for some reason they are not wholly satisfactory, but still the people of Ecuador and Peru are not fighting about it. They are handling it in some way that is not war.

At the Second Pan-American Scientific Congress in 1915, at Christmas time, each one of the delegates had to make a speech of greeting. There were twenty-one delegates. Of course they spoke in their own language, or in English, as they chose. The Bolivian minister was finally called on, in his proper order in the rank of embassies and legations then in Washington. He spoke in English without notes. He made a beautiful speech; beautiful English, beautiful sentiment; and among other things, he said: "I can't help thinking deeply of the appropriateness and significance of our holding the Second Pan-American Scientific Congress just now on the 27th of December, when we have just been celebrating the birth of the Prince of Peace." There were twenty-one delegates, including the North American Delegate, and the Bolivian minister was the only man who had thought of that Congress as doing Christ's work and of the appropriateness of our holding that congress and beginning its sessions just after we had been celebrating the birth of the Prince of Peace.

In discussing with you Hispano-American ideals, I must remind you that they have some ideals that we do not quite realize that they hold, but which are like our own. At the dinner of the Secretary of State to all the delegates at the Second Pan-American Scientific Congress I was placed between a Colombian—and you know that at that time we were not on the best terms with Colombia—and a Haitian. The Haitian was a white man. (Two of the other members of the Haitian delegation were negroes, who talked exquisite French. So did this man.) Early in the course of the dinner cigarette boxes were passed around to every guest. Although I do not smoke, I took mine and put it in my pocket and told these two gentlemen at my sides that while I do not smoke I always take all the smokes that come around at a banquet and send them to my father. (Incidentally, tonight is my father's seventy-sixth birthday. I have the smokes in my pocket and I am going to send them to him with an account of this occasion.) That was early in the dinner. You know what a Secretary-of-State banquet is likely to be. You know that it lasted at least two hours before we got to the speeches. Just before we got to the coffee cigars were passed around, and instead of handing over the box to you, as is the usual thing, two cigars were placed at each man's place. I proceeded to put mine in my pocket. Although it was two hours after the cigarette story, both of these gentlemen, simultaneously, turned to me, offered me a cigar and said, "Send this to your father with my compliments." Neither waited for the other. The thing was done simultaneously, each man speaking in his own language, French and Spanish, "Send this to your father with my compliments." Now with all the varied matters that we had been talking of in that international group, those gentlemen had remembered my little story and there was enough of the father in them, or son, I do not know which, to couple up with the story, and each wanted to send his greeting to my father. Do you think they are such cannibals or such heathen if they have such sentiments as that? I don't. The man on my right came from a country with which we are having a very serious discussion on account of the recognition we had given, rather speedily, of the independence of Panama. The man on my left was from Haiti, and you know we had been having some trouble with Haiti. And yet, as human beings, they could get on the same plane and share the same sentiments that we have towards our fathers and towards our children.

You will be interested in business matters, I presume. On my trip to South America in 1914 I met a business man who was not entirely without importance. He carried a letter of credit for 25,000 pounds sterling and American Express checks for about $50,000. He told me this story of an experience he had with sending some goods to South America. He asked a certain dealer whom he saw with a stock of French calicoes, "Why don't you buy American calicoes? We make better calicoes than the French do." The dealer said, "I know you do." "Then why don't you buy them?" The dealer said that he had a few reasons that he thought were fairly good. In the first place, the French dealer comes in here and he has with him an interpreter or he knows Spanish himself and he proceeds to talk to me in my own language. Your agent comes down and the first thing he does is to make me understand in some way that I ought to know English, and when he finds out that I can't speak English he makes me understand in some fashion that I should send out for an interpreter because he wants to sell me a bill of goods.

The second reason is that you don't furnish me the designs I want. You have a fine line of goods, delicate figures, delicate colorings, but I can't sell them in a month of Sundays to the people that want to buy calicoes here. Your man asks what I can sell and I point to the parties walking down the street, showing him the sprawling figures that our people like. I don't mean our society people, I mean the people that buy calicoes. Your man has nothing like it and so he packs up and leaves. The Frenchman comes along with a group of samples a little bit more ornate than yours but not much different in color, a little bit brighter, but nowhere near what I can sell. I tell him just what I tell your man, that I can sell goods like what you see on the streets on the backs of these people. The Frenchman sketches that thing as it goes down the street and he sends that sketch back to France. His firm makes up new combinations of colors, makes new dies, and they bring me stuff that I can sell. Those are two reasons why I don't buy American calicoes.

The third reason is that you send your stuff down in bolts, packed in cases. The cases contain an irregular number of bolts; the bolts contain any irregular number of yards, 110, 105 and so on. Every bolt is properly tagged, but when I want to know how much my duty is I have to open every case and take out every bolt and find out how many yards it contains, add it all up, compute it in meters and then find out what I owe. The Frenchman sends me my calicoes in bolts that contain 100 meters, packed in metal cylinders. I can count up what I owe as the goods roll down the gang-plank.

The fourth reason is that the French house gives me six months' time after the goods are delivered here to me. Your house wants the money when the goods are put on board ship in New York. Those are perfectly good reasons for not dealing with you and buying American calicoes.

Another reason is the matter of shipment. The South American dealer knows what climate his stuff has to come through. He tells how he wants it packed. If it is rubber goods it will get ruined as it passes through the tropics if it is not hermetically sealed. A man in Colombia wants 150-pound packages. The American dealer thinks that is a funny figure and so he makes it 200 pounds. Now the Colombian knows that this stuff has to go by mule back or burro back for miles and miles. One hundred and fifty pounds is just exactly half a mule's load. You can swing two barrels or two boxes of 150 pounds each on the two sides of the mule and he is loaded. If the package weighs 200 pounds it has to be put on top of the mule and he is not loaded, but is top-heavy. Therefore the transportation charges go up.

The Y. M. C. A. has taken quite a prominent place in South American affairs, despite the fact that South America by large is Roman Catholic and the Y. M. C. A. is not. Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil have all gone into it because of the campaign of physical cleanliness that the Y. M. C. A. preaches. They have gone into it officially, and send annually delegates to the conference at Piriapolis in Uruguay. Uruguay holds this annual conference because a certain very rich man down there has given to the Y. M. C. A. for this purpose an enormous camp out of his own private estates and the Uruguayan Government issues the invitation to these nations to send their delegates and from the time they reach Montevideo they are the guests of the Uruguayan nation. They are sent up the river in gunboats of the Uruguayan navy. They are in camp for the whole two weeks in full army equipment of the Uruguayan army. That shows you how the governments have gotten behind the Y. M. C. A. movement because of its campaign of moral cleanliness.

Well, there came a time when they felt in Montevideo that they ought to have a drive for the Y. M. C. A. (I saw that Y. M. C. A. when I was there, and made them an address on a Sunday evening. I was leaving that night, but they guaranteed to get me to the ship before she left. I had a very nice talk with the boys.) They had this drive and they were afraid that they might not get across with it, because South America had never before had a movement put to them personally that way. They take care of their hospitals and things of that kind through taxation. The idea of coming to you personally and saying, "Here is a hospital that we want you to build" was new. They had never done it. So they went to some of the leading citizens of Montevideo, bankers, lawyers, men of affairs and university professors, to get behind this movement, and in two weeks they put it across.

Rio watched Montevideo and they decided they wanted to have a drive for the same purpose, and they got statesmen, ministers of finance and leading citizens of all types into it and in nine days, not fourteen, they had instead of $100,000, $115,000 and called the campaign off. This was at a time when the war was already on. The campaign took place after we had gotten into the war. They had a celebration after this nine-day campaign during which time they raised $115,000, where they had intended to get $100,000 in fourteen days, and at the banquet was present the greatest orator in Brazil, a statesman whose name you know. He came straight from the Congress to this banquet and was asked to make a speech. He said, "Gentlemen, I am very glad to be here today because with the successful completion of this drive for humanitarian purposes, which is the first of its kind we have had in this country, we have proven twice today that Brazil has found her soul. The first time is the occasion we are celebrating here at this banquet, and the other, gentlemen, is an incident I am going to tell you of right now. I have just come from the Congress, and I want to tell you that Brazil has declared war on Germany."

I want you to stop and think what it means to have that statesman coupling in his mind the declaration of war on Germany for reasons which seemed good to the Brazilian authorities and the success of the humanitarian drive for Y. M. C. A. purposes, both of which are so connected with the life of Brazil that he said they proved she had found her soul.

No nation is better than its leaders, of course, and I presume no nation is better in some respects than some of its newspapers. The greatest newspaper in the western hemisphere is not the Chicago Tribune, nor the New York Times, nor the New York Sun, nor the Boston Transcript, nor any of the others that you may happen to like best. The greatest newspaper in the western hemisphere is La Prensa of Buenos Aires. That newspaper is an institution.

I will sketch just a few things it does aside from carrying on the best newspaper service there is in the western hemisphere.

In the first place it has all sorts of advantages for its own employees, night schools, lunch room, rest room for certain hours. They leave the office at twelve and take their lunch and then rest till one. It has a gymnasium and all that sort of thing for its own employees. It has a free consultation bureau for agriculture. It has also a free consultation bureau for legal affairs, that evolved out of the fact that shyster lawyers were fleecing the poor fellows that came in from the country, and La Prensa put a stop to that. It has a free consultation bureau for medical affairs. That arose because they found out there were certain doctors who, if a farmer got a scratch out on the farm, or a laborer got a wound in an accident, would treat it and have him come back the next week and keep the wound open and charge the fellow right along. As soon as La Prensa found that out, it decided to kill the system by establishing free consultation. Then they included dentistry. Then they built a great big suite of rooms which is where the most celebrated guests of the nation have been entertained. Then they built a great big concert hall with tapestries along the wall, so exquisite that anybody would pay a dollar to go to see them, and the ceiling is decorated correspondingly. That hall is absolutely free for the use of any eleemosynary institution. All you have to do is to arrange for a date that is not yet booked and you can give your entertainment in a place where the surroundings are such that the people will go to see it anyhow without your entertainment. Don't you see how much it would enhance the attractiveness of any program you wanted to put on? It doesn't get stale; not any more than does your own museum over there. Now that is what La Prensa represents. We went there at two o'clock in the morning and met the editor. He did not expect us. He greeted us, but he did not ask us to sit down. He just began to chat with us. He chatted for a half hour and when he wound up he apologized for not having asked us to sit down. We were discussing the Monroe doctrine, a certain interpretation of it, and he said: "Anybody who knows your history and ours—when I say ours I don't mean Argentina, I mean all of us in the south—ought to recognize that you can't get along without it and that we can't get along without it. Now I want you when you go home to preach in season and out of season that you people ought to study Spanish more than you do, the Spanish language, Spanish literature and Spanish history of the motherland, and of these eighteen daughter nations of Old Spain; and I pledge you that I will keep up the campaign which I have already been waging for years, that we, here in the south, should study more than we do the English language, and literature, and English history of the parentland, and then the literature, history and institutions of you in North America, because we must learn to know each other better." That was this editor's attitude in an informal talk at half past two in the morning, when he did not expect us at all.

The opera house in Buenos Aires belongs to the city and is one of the greatest opera houses in the world. The late lamented Caruso used to say that he would rather sing to the audiences there which I am going to describe to you in a moment, than to the audience in any other theatre in which he had ever sung anywhere in the world. What was the audience that he wanted to sing to? The opera house belongs to the city and is turned over to the public on certain occasions; but the doors are not thrown open for the mob just to pile in. The city sends out agents to the poor districts and finds a washwoman trying to earn money enough to get an education for four or five children. "How many seats do you need, Madam?" She is given the number of seats she requires, and she does not have to get there any sooner than the usual holder of a box seat. Along with the rest of the house, the boxes of the Mayor and the President are turned over to the public. The President has a proscenium box and the Mayor's box is right in the center of the golden horseshoe. That box is given to some little seamstress and her family. On the days that these free performances are given the whole house is thus given away by ticket to the people who are going to use the tickets on that occasion. Caruso says that there is no audience in the world to whom he has ever sung that responds as does that poverty-stricken audience that loves music. We shall have to travel a long way in this country before we can equal that ideal of furnishing the best music to the public.

In Argentina they have one of the finest immigration bureaus that I know of in the world, whereby a man is taken care of before he leaves the other side. He registers on the other side, and he is advertised on this side of the water. Do you want a farm hand?

Do you want a laborer of this type? The Government gets him the job before he gets here. If they don't get him the job they take care of him until they do. When they do get him a job this is what happens: They don't give him any money; they don't let him get into the congested districts. They take him to the railroad station and they give the ticket to the conductor and they say to the conductor: "You are responsible for delivering that man at such and such a place to so and so, who has agreed to pay him so much wages. We have the agreement in our office." Every two or three months they go around to see whether it has been done or not. They go around and inspect and find out, and they do not have any peonage. Do we do that? Those are institutions, aren't they, that show ideals?

Dr. Nelson, who was the leader of the delegation that received our delegation in Buenos Aires, talks English as well as you do. He studied four years at Columbia University. He was in 1914 Inspector General of Special and Secondary Education for the whole of Argentina. They had no dormitories at their universities down there until he put one in. I went through it. I took dinner there. They were a fine set of youngsters under the leadership of this man Nelson.

We were entertained later by the Minister of Public Instruction at the Jockey Club, the most magnificent club in the world. The sculptural lines of the building itself are made to harmonize with the architectural lines. The sculpture that is loose has been chosen not only for the value of its own beauty but with a view to the place in which it is to be put. For example, there stands a perfectly wonderful white marble statue of Diana on the landing at the head of the grand stair-case. The paintings that are in the building are themselves gems and works of art.

After the dinner was over, we were taken to see this luxury, not the luxury of the nouveaux riches but the luxury of taste. They took us down to the cellars. I do not believe that in the days before the Eighteenth Amendment was passed any hotel in New York had such a stock of the finest vintages as was to be found in the cellars of the Jockey Club. It was like going through a library, with narrow aisles, stacks seven feet high, a regular library of the finest wines in the world. Dr. Nelson put his arm through mine and, his voice shaking, his arm trembling, said to me: "I wonder when this country of mine will have progressed so far that, instead of being proud that we have such a stock as this of stuff that creates so much ruin and damnation in the world, we shall be proud rather that all our children of school age are properly clothed and properly schooled." When he was up at the Pan-American Congress I reminded him of that. He said, "Did I say that?" I said, "Yes, you said it, and it was not so much what you said as it was what I felt going through your arm that told the story of what was inside of you." Now that was the Inspector-General of Secondary and Special Education. If you will remember that the prohibition movement in this country all began with that kind of teaching in the primary school thirty years ago, you will see that there is hope for Argentina with a man like that as an important factor in the educational system.

Dr. Wilmart was another member of the delegation that received us. I sent him my Christmas greetings, hoping he would be up here to attend the Pan-American Congress. This is a post card I received from him (and I am reading you his English):

"Much obliged for your kind card. I do not see when I shall be able to go to the States on account of the war. What a dreadful thing! How can a few men, even one alone, throw nations and nations into such slaughter? When will 'the other' nations, when a war is going to be started, instead of stupidly and mechanically declaring that they will 'strictly observe the duties of neutrality' unite and say that they will see into it and help by all means they may think fit the party that has been provoked? An international economic boycott on the part of the neutral nations against the culprit would keep this one quiet without an army and navy. Monroe's doctrine and Drago's doctrine have cost practically nothing and they have prevented many wars. Their extension to all cases would not cost money. The neutral countries owe justice to the world, and should not keep the warring ring so silly and cruelly."

Now, if you stop to analyze that card there are three of the four planks that figured in the platform of the American League to Enforce Peace, which was formulated in Philadelphia, in June, 1915. This was written on the first of February, 1915.

Now if their statesmen have such ideas that they can formulate three out of our four before we get the four, why, we are not so much ahead of them are we? That same thought appeared in an article in the January, 1915, number of the Revista Argentina de Ciencias Políticas wherein this same statesman said that if the United States got into the war she would find that there were certain South American countries willing to help her efficaciously in the defense of the Monroe Doctrine. Was that prognostication in 1915 made good later? You know it was.

José María Gálvez is an educator of Chile. After the Pan-American Congress he made a speech at our university, his subject being "Removing the Barrier of Language." He spoke in beautiful English, and without notes. Later he made an extempore speech at a reception that was given in his honor. Among other things, he said: "You of the north and we of the south have much more in common than we think we have. For example, we are all hero-worshippers. You, of the north, have your Washington, Lincoln, and Grant. We, of the south, have our Bolívar, Sarmiento and San Martín. And we, of the south, have also Washington, Lincoln and Grant; but I am afraid that you, of the north, do not know as much as we wish you did about our Bolívar, Sarmiento, and San Martín." Was he right? Then he added: "But we all have one hero in common, Jesus Christ; and if we mould our lives in accord with His, you of the north and we of the south, we shall come to forget our differences and think only of the things we have in common, and we shall reach peace, not merely a peace that does not mean war but a peace that means community of interests and of work."

One evening during the Pan-American Congress, President Wilson made a formal address to the delegates. His peroration wound up with something like this phrase: "If Pan-Americanism is going to mean anything it must come to the point where we of the north shall feel just as sure that, if we are attacked, you of the south will defend us, as you of the south now are that if you are attacked we will defend you, by virtue of the Monroe Doctrine, and all that must come about without treaties and with mutual respect for each other's territorial integrity and sovereignty." Wilson spoke with great deliberation that evening and he said this so slowly and distinctly that they all caught it. For an appreciable moment there was no applause at all, and then from all over the house (not a scattering from here and there across the house, but from all over the place) came a perfect thunder of applause. I walked out with Eduardo Monteverde, one of the Uruguayan delegates, who said to me: "Fitz-Gerald, what our countries in South America need is Christ in our lives working out, not a Christ whom we accept and pigeon-hole, and forget, but a Christ who is working in us all the time." What do you think of the ideals of that man?

Now just two more instances, and then I am through. We had declared war on Germany, and several countries in Hispano-America followed our suit. Uruguay under its then President Viera and its Minister of State (who is now its President), Dr. Baltasar Brum, issued this decree to the world June 18, 1917: "No American nation which, in defense of its rights, should be in a state of war with nations of other continents, shall be dealt with as a belligerent." Then they proceeded to invite our fleet down there for a two weeks' visit. I meant to bring you the speech that was made at the farewell reception, by their leading writer today, Dr. Juan Zorrilla de San Martín, who was the Chairman of the Civic Committee that prepared this whole entertainment for our boys, but I shall have to content myself with telling you what I shall tell you about him. This Committee entertained our boys two thousand at a time. They collected money for this kind of purpose. They told their Government: "We want a building for this fleet. We must take care of them. We must provide good sleeping quarters when they knock off between hours." The Government turned over to the Committee a newly-acquired building and told them to remodel it to suit their needs. Then the question came up as to who was the man to do this and somebody said, "See Conard"; and those of you who are Eta members know who Conard is. He is a graduate of Illinois and the Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. work on the East coast of South America. The Uruguayan government sent the Committee over to Conard to ask him to tell them what they needed to do to that building to make it fit to take care of two thousand men. They remodeled the whole building, and put it in shape according to plans outlined by Conard. The Committee had gone to the War Department in the first place; and now they went to the Department of Public Works, for the cost of remodelling the building. The police captain reported in the official police report that the red light district had never been so little used. We had two thousand men on shore all the time. Later the Committee wanted to have a grand ball for the men, not the officers. "How are you going to run the ball?" they were asked. "How are you going to get the women?" The finest women of society chaperoned the ball and the best of their women employes were picked by the proprietors of the great stores; they pulled that ball off for the men in wonderful style.

Then they had the farewell reception to which I have referred; and I have never read any more spiritual address than the address delivered on that occasion by Dr. Juan Zorrilla de San Martín. Nor have I read anywhere a greater tribute to American manhood than he paid to the sailors of our fleet.

Chile and Argentina had a boundary dispute. They were going to settle it in the usual way: fight. They got their armies all massed and ready. Then some unseen power got hold of them and they decided that they would arbitrate. They chose Queen Victoria. While they were marshalling their evidence, the Queen died, and they had to choose somebody else. They chose King Edward. His award was accepted. That was fine. We are proud of the fact that we settled our boundary dispute with England without war. The Chileans and Argentines are proud of having settled their boundary dispute without a war. But they went further than we did. They took the cannon of the two armies and they got a great sculptor and they proposed a plan for a monument to be on the boundary line; and the sculptor decided he would make for them a bronze statue of Christ. It is called the Christ of the Andes, and on the base of that statue they put themselves on record as we have not. "Sooner shall these mountains crumble into dust than that Chileans and Argentines shall break the peace that they have pledged each other at the feet of Christ, their Redeemer." They have had the courage to put themselves on record as no other two nations in the world have done in the matter of keeping peace. There that statue stands in solitary grandeur, amid the towering peaks of the Andes, in the blazing brilliance of their everlasting snows, a constant reminder to them and to us that international affairs can be settled according to the principles of the Prince of Peace. (Applause.)

The MYSTIC CIRCLE

A resolution adopted by the Minneapolis Convention authorizes the Grand Prudential Committee to publish the names of the active members of each chapter of the Fraternity at the close of each college year. In accordance with the provisions of that resolution, the EXECUTIVE SECRETARY has prepared from his records the official roster for the Academic Year, 1921-1922, which follows.

The names are arranged in the order of initiation into, or affiliation with, a chapter.

An affiliated member is shown by a letter in parenthesis following his name, the letter being that of his mother chapter.

Names in italics designate Faculty Members, that is, active members who have been initiated from the faculty. Such members, however, shall be eligible to privileges of alumni members after one year from the date of initiation.

The figures at the end of each chapter list indicate the total number of old members, the total additions (initiates and affiliates), and the total active membership for 1921-1922.

A summary by chapters is appended.

TOLEDO ALUMNI COUNCIL

A monthly luncheon of the Toledo Council was held at the Toledo Chamber of Commerce on April 20th, 1922. The meeting was attended by ten of the local alumni, and a very interesting time had by all. We had with us as a visitor Russell S. Cunningham (Zeta), from Columbus, who was visiting the city on behalf of the Securities Department of Ohio.

Several interesting articles in the February TOMAHAWK were discussed and the brothers present seemed to be almost unanimous in endorsing the article in that issue which favored a more rapid, although a careful, expansion of the number of chapters.

We are taking part in the entertainment of the Ohio State Glee Club, which is to be in Toledo on April 22nd. Four of Zeta Chapter's men are on the Glee Club, and we expect to show them a good time as well as being ourselves entertained by them.

Toledo Council now numbers seventeen men. Brother Herman A. Canfield "Zeta", formerly living at Fayette, Ohio, has moved to Toledo, and is now working at The Reuben Realty Company, Madison Avenue, Toledo, Ohio. There are nine or ten actives from Toledo this year, most of them being at Ohio State, and we hope to add a few more to that number next fall.

KANSAS CITY ALUMNI COUNCIL

The Kansas City Alumni Council of Alpha Sigma Phi met at the Baltimore Hotel for lunch at one o'clock Saturday, April 29th. Following the luncheon a short business meeting was held, and the following officers were elected for the coming year:

President, R. S. Hudson (A), Veterans Bureau, 600 Gibraltar Bldg., K. C., Mo.

Secretary, Irwin A. Clark (Xi), Bio. Chemist, General Hospital, K. C., Mo.

Directors, R. B. Allen (Lambda), Country Day School; William E. Byers (Δ and Lambda), Atty., 1116 Commerce Bldg.; Lloyd R. Fraker (Xi), Atty., 600 Victor Bldg.

A theatre party is being planned for the latter part of May as a farewell to Brother Allen, who is leaving early in June for a trip abroad. He expects to spend most of the summer months touring England.

No definite dates have been set for meetings but the Kansas City Council plans to meet often within the next year. We would be glad to get in touch with any Sigs stopping over here and are on the lookout for new members in this vicinity.

CLEVELAND ALUMNI COUNCIL

At the Annual Meeting of the Cleveland Alumni Council, held at the Hotel Winton June 15th, 1922, the following officers were elected for the year 1922-1923:

Brother B. G. Krause (Theta '17) was re-elected President; Brother H. F. Staples (Gamma) was elected Vice-President; Brother H. O. Fullerton (Theta '20) was re-elected Secretary and Treasurer.

At a previous meeting a Committee was appointed to draw up a constitution. Brother Krause presented one which, with certain amendments, was accepted at this meeting.

Brother Fullerton distributed copies of the Directory of this council which has been compiled during the past months.

The PINNACLE of FAME

The following is an official list, compiled by the EXECUTIVE SECRETARY, containing the names of all who have climbed the Pinnacle of Fame during the Academic Year, 1921-1922. Affiliates are also shown.

A name in italics indicates a member initiated from the Faculty. A name in SMALL CAPS indicates that the initiate was a member of the petitioning local from which his chapter originated. The serial chapter number precedes each name.

HELLENICA

The New York Institute of Public Service, in an attempt to forecast the growth of higher education in the United States, has compiled the following table of attendance at State Universities and has estimated the probable attendance at such institutions in thirty years:

	Register for 1919-1920	Increase over 1913-1914	Predicted for 1950
University of California.....	11,893	6,213	42,958
College of the City of New York.....	9,071	6,767	42,871
University of Michigan.....	8,560	3,040	23,760
University of Illinois.....	8,549	3,425	25,674
University of Minnesota.....	8,275	4,537	20,955
University of Wisconsin.....	7,294	2,608	20,334
Ohio State University.....	7,023	3,194	22,983
University of Washington.....	5,958	3,148	21,698
University of Kansas.....	5,589	1,252	9,580
University of Nebraska.....	5,286	2,147	16,026
University of Louisiana.....	4,933	2,264	16,253
University of Texas.....	4,418	1,927	14,053
University of Missouri.....	4,222	855	8,497
Pennsylvania State College.....	4,194	1,454	11,464
Iowa State College.....	4,034	1,575	11,909
University of Cincinnati.....	3,513	1,512	11,070
Oregon State College of Agriculture.....	3,442	1,863	12,757
Kansas State College of Agriculture.....	2,961	304	4,480
University of Oklahoma.....	2,608	1,600	10,610

Such a prediction will hold true however only if registration is not restricted in any marked degree. But even though they are state institutions it is not at all improbable that restrictions will be imposed to a more or less degree as found practical and necessary by such institutions as Princeton, Stanford, Columbia, Dartmouth, Yale, Cornell and many others which have imposed severer restrictions each year. Many universities have reached what they believe the limit to their judicious expansion, although Columbia with an enrollment of approximately 30,000—is unquestionably the largest university and has kept its facilities apace with its increased enrollment, it foresees the advisability of limiting its future growth in registration, particularly in the undergraduate schools.—The Sigma Chi Quarterly.

Plans are now being made for the uniting of Western Reserve University with the Case School of Applied Science into one of the largest city universities in the nation. Only three fraternities, Σ N, B Φ H, and Z B T have chapters at both institutions.—The Purple Green and Gold, Λ x A.

Theta Delta Chi has given a Charter to her mother Chapter at Union College where the Chapter has been dormant since 1867. Sigma Nu has also re-chartered a dead Chapter—at the College of William and Mary, Va.—The Rattle-Theta Chi.

Lafayette College refused permission to Alpha Chi Rho to purchase a chapter house situated about ten minutes' walk from the campus. They held it was too far away from the college.—Sigma Chi Quarterly.

The Grand Lodge of Theta Xi announces the recent chartering and installation of the following chapters:

Alpha Beta, University of Illinois, Champaign, Illinois.

ARE YOU PICKING "GOAT FEATHERS?"

Is not the wave of "honorary societies" being carried to the extreme? Almost every chapter-letter "points with pride" to the fact that Brother So-and-So has made Gamma Upsilon, the "honorary" dancing society, or that Brother This-and-That has been elected to Beta Beta Beta, the "exclusive" organization whose members wear no head-gear on the campus.

It is an inherent right of man to "join." But from this coign of vantage it seems that there are too many useless organizations in existence on our campuses today. The returns are not commensurate with the energy expended in them.

This is not an attack on legitimate societies whose purposes are to encourage proficiency in the really worth-while affairs of university life. We do believe, however, that a warning should be sounded against the tendency to carry the "joining" habit into excess.

Ponder well before you permit your name to be linked with an organization of doubtful value whose members spend their time, as one of our exchanges suggests, picking "goat feathers."—The Phi Gamma Delta.

The principal aim of the Fraternity is to pass every man. If the minimum is passing, the maximum is bound to be high.—The Delta, Sigma Nu.

RUBY STRACHAN MOORE

Stanford '23, Tau '21

Tau Chapter and the Stanford campus generally were shocked to learn of the death of RUBY STRACHAN MOORE early in the morning of May 20, 1922, as a result of a fatal injury received in an automobile accident, which occurred on the campus during the evening of the preceding day.

RUBY STRACHAN MOORE

Brother Moore was born at Stillwater, Okla., on May 1, 1901. While yet a small boy, his parents moved to Jerome, Ida., where his mother, Mrs. Stella Strachan Moore, now resides. His father, the late Ralph Moore, died about six years ago. Moore attended the High School at Jerome, graduating in June, 1919, and entered Stanford University the following Fall as a member of the class of 1923, department of Economics. He was a member of the Stanford Glee Club and also of the Economics Club. "Jimmy" was initiated into Tau Chapter of

A Σ Φ on May 15, 1921, and took an active part in chapter affairs.

The following account from the Palo Alto (Calif.) Times gives the particulars of the accident:

The accident occurred on Palm Drive at the turn around the oval in front of the Quadrangle. Moore's machine, an Essex, was going toward the University, and Goby's car, a Cadillac, was coming in the opposition direction. The cars crashed at the right side of Palm Drive, Moore's machine having been crowded into the trees lining the drive in the attempt to avoid the other car, which was said to be coming at a faster rate of speed, and which swerved to the left side of the road in making the turn. Rain had started to fall just prior to the accident, making skidding possible.

The accident occurred in the evening about 9 o'clock. Brother Moore was rushed to the Palo Alto Hospital for treatment, where an operation was attempted in an effort to save his life, but because of the nature of the injury—a skull fracture—he died shortly before 2 A. M. the following morning, while under the influence of an anesthetic. His companion at the time of the crash was Miss Elizabeth Mayhew, of Palo Alto, who although badly bruised was able to return to her home from the hospital the following day. Arthur Goby, a freshman, driver of the car which collided with Moore's machine, was also injured but not seriously.

Brief funeral services were held in the Memorial Church on the Stanford Campus, Sunday morning, May 21, 1922. The entire active chapter and a number of A Σ Φ alumni attended these services. The body was accompanied to Brother Moore's home in Jerome, Ida., by Wesley M. Heine (T '21), of Los Angeles, a classmate and close personal friend. Funeral services were conducted from his home by the Rev. R. Lloyd Roberts, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, who made a hurried trip from Des Moines, Iowa, where he was attending the General Assembly of the Church, in order that he might officiate at the funeral.

The following clipping, taken from a Jerome, Ida., paper shows the esteem in which our young brother was held in his home town:

The entire community is shocked and saddened at the untimely end of a career so promising, and of a life that had always been an exemplary one, and one of devotion and thoughtfulness for the widowed mother. Ruby Moore was studious and industrious, and besides his general education he was an accomplished musician.

* * * This young man's life and character was an open book known to all the community, and they pronounce an eulogy better than words can express it. His good deportment, his thoughtfulness of others, his quiet and gentlemanly conduct, his application to his work, his devotion to his mother, and his reverence to his Maker, all marked him as an exceptional young man, one whose example is worthy of emulation.
